

TWO MISSOURI SENATORS FIGHT AMENDMENT TO RIVERFRONT BILL

Symington and Hennings Ask Senate Group to Reverse House Action Threatening Fund.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 22 — Missouri's Democratic Senators Thomas C. Hennings Jr. and Stuart Symington urged the Senate Appropriations Committee today to reverse the action of the House in placing a crippling restriction on the $3,000,000 appropriation for the St. Louis riverfront project.

Committee Chairman Carl Hayden (Dem., Arizona) indicated he would look with favor on the request to restore a provision that the federal funds would remain available until spent, so that work on the memorial could go ahead.

Symington and Hennings appeared before the committee in a hearing on a House-approved supplementary appropriation bill containing the St. Louis funds.

Hayden's Comment.
Referring to the request to reinsert the language taken out by the House, Hayden commented: "We do that year after year with military appropriation bills."

"You know that you may not be able to spend the money in the current fiscal year, but you have a good project."

The House version created doubt that the city could qualify for the $3,000,000, by removing a provision that it would remain available until spent. Instead, the money would have to be obligated by next June 30 or it would revert to the Treasury.

Symington and Hennings asked the committee to reinsert the words, "to remain available until expended" and return the appropriation bill to a Senate-House conference committee.

If the language stricken by the House is restored, work can go ahead to make way for eventual construction of the memorial, Hennings said.

Symington told the committee the project has been "delayed far too long. It should be completed as soon as possible."

Conrad L. Wirth, director of the National Park Service, told the committee it would not be "practicable" to prepare plans, specifications and bid invitations necessary to enter into contracts before June 30. "The time is too short for carrying out the intended purpose" of signing contracts, he added.

He asked the committee to restore the wording so federal money will be "available until expended, the same as for our regular construction items."

The committee is expected to act next week.

If the Senate reinserted the phrase, House Parliamentarian Lewis Deschler said, the House conferees could not accept the Senate amendment and include it in the conference report because this would violate a rule of the House, in view of the fact that the language originally was stricken on a point of order.

Parliamentary Procedure.

Instead, to get the amendment accepted, the conferees would have to send it back to the House to be voted on separately, with a recommendation that the House "recede and concur" in the Senate version. Such a vote would not be subject to a point of order, Deschler said.

Meanwhile, Washington authorities differed as to the effect of the crippling amendment. A spokesman for the General Accounting Office told

U.S. OFFERS TO CUT FORCE TO 2,500,000 IF RUSSIA DOES

Stassen Puts Proposal Before U.N. Group —Reduction in Arms Spending
Also Urged.

LONDON, March 22 (UPI)—The United States offered today to cut its military manpower to 2,500,000 men if the Soviet Union will match it.

The American proposal was put before today's session of the United Nations subcommittee on disarmament by United States delegate Harold E. Stassen.

Stassen said the United States also was willing, on a mutual basis with Russia, to reduce armaments and military expenditures to levels in line with the smaller armed forces.

The entire American offer was contingent on the Soviet Union reducing its armed forces to 2,500,000 men, with a corresponding reduction in expenditures and armaments.

The American plan specified that the scheme must be carried out on a "reciprocal and safe-guarded basis."

The United States currently has around 2,900,000 men under arms. The strength of the Soviet armed forces is estimated at about 4,000,000 men.

This was the second major American disarmament proposal in two days. The Soviets still have not reacted to yesterday's American proposal to set up

PLASTIC HOUSES, AUTO BODIES NEAR, SCIENTIST SAYS

CHICAGO, March 22 (UPI)—Plastic automobile bodies and houses are "just around the corner," Prof. Vasili I. Komarewsky, one of the country's top men in oil and plastic research, predicted today.

Komarewsky, director of the kymatology laboratory at Illinois Institute of Technology, said plastics will be used in many other products in the near future and will be lighter, less expensive and "in many cases more desirable than the materials now being used."

One-piece plastic automobile bodies will be lighter and more economical," he said, "and they'll be just as safe as steel."

Plastics could also replace most of the natural building materials used in home construction, he said, and they would withstand weathering better than either metal or masonry.

"Plastic building materials can be designed to be fitted together easily," he said. "This would cut labor costs and the price of a house."

SHERMAN ADAMS SAYS HE WROTE IN VOTE FOR NIXON

WASHINGTON, March 22 (INS)—President Assistant Sherman Adams disclosed today that he not only favors Vice President Richard M. Nixon for the No. 2 spot this year, but proved it last week by writing in Nixon's name on his own New Hampshire primary ballot.

Reporting reports that he has encouraged the "dump Nixon" drive, Adams said in an interview: "I voted for him last week. I was one of his nearly 23,000 write-ins."

Adams predicted that Nixon will show similar strength in every other open primary this spring.

Nixon may not be endorsed by acclamation at the San Francisco convention, Adams conceded, but will "win the nomination" for the Vice Presidency.

Acoustics at St. Louis House Hall Called Best for Recording

For phonograph recording in these days of exquisitely applied electronics, the fidelity must be high—considerably higher than it is in Kiel Auditorium. After a search for some place more suitable, Columbia Records engineers decided on St. Louis House for a session with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra today.

The orchestra played in rehearsal at the hall and Howard Scott, recording director for Columbia who helped select the location, was well pleased with acoustics. He said the orchestra sounded "first rate."

"I wasn't satisfied with the sound set up in the Opera House at Kiel Auditorium," Scott said. "The vastness of the room and the carpeting deadens and absorbs sound."

The older hall (St. Louis House) is made of nothing but wood, plaster and glass—materials that allow sound to dis-

JET TESTING SITE SOUGHT IN EVENT ARMED SERVICES WANT 2 AIRPORTS AEC AND BRITISH

C. of C. Looks for Field
Even Though It Feels Hazards, Annoyances Are Exaggerated.

The Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis is seeking a site in this area as a possible airport for the testing of jet planes in the event military authorities believe it advisable to separate jet testing from other military flying activities, it was announced today.

In letters to United States Representative Frank M. Karsner and United States Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr., both of St. Louis, Alloys P. Kaufmann, chamber president, said this site would be in addition to the $30,000,000 military airport which the chamber has proposed in St. Charles county.

Kaufmann in his letter to Hennings noted that the Missouri Senator had endorsed the proposal for a military airport in St. Charles county, but had suggested that jet testing activities should be located separately in a rural area.

Expressing gratification at the endorsement of the airport for military flying, Kaufmann nevertheless expressed concern that testing facilities might be moved out of the metropolitan area, with consequent dislocation of the several hundred persons now employed in this activity.

"We still believe, in the interest of economy, that these testing facilities should be located along with the other establishments on a second airport in the area we suggested in St. Charles county," Kaufmann continued.

"We feel that the hazards and annoyances of jet testing on a multiple-use airfield are considerably exaggerated and do not constitute a valid justification for the additional expenses of a separate and remote field," Kaufmann said.

Struggles between socialism and capitalism in the United States, and between Communism and capitalism abroad cause the basic conflicts in this country today, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks declared here last night.

Describing socialism as a "cousin" of Communism, Weeks vigorously defended the free enterprise system in an address at the annual dinner of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, before a capacity audience in Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson's Gold Room.

He termed the Dixon-Yates power controversy an example of the struggle between Socialism and capitalism within the United States.

"There is nothing to Dixon-Yates except the fight between those who want the Government to do everything and those who believe that private enterprise should be allowed to do the job," he said.

He added that "private enterprise always does a better job than the Government."

Last Nov. 23 the AEC issued a one-paragraph announcement saying the Russians had conducted another nuclear test, Strauss said the explosion was the biggest to date in the Soviet Union and was in "the range of megatons."

One megaton represents the explosive equivalent of 1,000,000 tons of TNT. Some days later Moscow claimed its explosion was of that magnitude.

There never has been any official estimate of the power of the 1954 Pacific tests, but in the range of 12 to 17 megatons, Strauss has stated that the 1956 tests will involve weapons of lesser destructive power.

Principal jet testing activity in the area is carried on by McDonnell Aircraft Corp., which manufactures jet fighters for the Navy. The company and the Navy have been seeking a site for this testing in some sparsely settled section outside the metropolitan area.

It was disclosed today that a three-member committee of the East St. Louis Chamber of Commerce has been making a survey of East Side sites for a military airport to serve this area.

Arthur C. Wadsworth, president of the chamber, declined to disclose any details of the survey, saying it was not known whether any adequate sites were available in the area. He said he hoped for a report from the committee within a week or 10 days.

Meanwhile, Lucius W. Burton, aviation specialist of the Department of Commerce, said he last night the Civil Aeronautics Administration can improve air traffic control facilities sufficiently to handle more and faster commercial aircraft if Congress approves a pending request for $250,000,000 for radar, communications and navigation equipment.

Addressing the Greater St. Louis chapter of the National Aeronautic Association at the Naval Air Station, Burton said the CAA is planning to increase materially the number of controllers by stepping up training facilities.

"Lack of adequate air traffic control can impose tremendous limitations on both civil and military air operations," he said.

"The situation will become really critical in three years if strong measures are not taken."

"We must have something done by the time the Douglas and Boeing commercial jets become available. With the present control facilities there would be room only for two jets in the air between Washington and New York."

Burton predicted that more than 1,000,000 passengers would board planes at Lambert-St. Louis Field each year by 1960. There were 35,000 departures last year with 375,000 passengers enplaning.

"Your new terminal was not too soon in coming," he said. "It was fortunate that it was built so it could be expanded because other relatively new terminals already have proved inadequate. The coming of jet transports, with at least 120 passengers on each, will further obsolesce them."

The top speed of commercial planes will increase from the present 300-plus miles an hour to more than 600 miles by 1960, Burton said. Speeds will be more than 1000 miles an hour by 1975, he estimated. With the advent of jets, civil transport flying ceilings will rise from the present 25,000 feet to 40,000.

The orchestra representative suggested they take a look at St. Louis House, explaining, however, that it was not a beer hall. Scott looked, slapped his hands together and exclaimed: "Just right."

The place is familiar to St. Louisans as the scene of television wrestling. And a mass of lights used for the wrestling will come in handy for the orchestra.

Next week the orchestra, directing Vladimír Goloschánek, will record three long-playing records for Columbia in the hall, 2345 Lafayette avenue. The records are to be released next fall.

STEVENSON SAYS HE DIDN'T SHAKE ENOUGH HANDS IN MINNESOTA

'We Traveled Too Fast,' Illinoisan Concedes, but He Asserts He Will Campaign 'Harder Than Ever.'

CHICAGO, March 22 (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson says that maybe he should have shaken more hands in Minnesota.

He conceded at a packed press conference yesterday that Tuesday's Minnesota primary knocked him aside as front-runner for the Democratic presidential nomination.

But he said he will keep on running—"harder than ever"—in other state primaries and that he will go to the Democratic convention in August seeking the No. 1 spot on the ticket.

He said he would not consider running for Vice President on a ticket headed by Senator Estes Kefauver, who beat him in the first primary where the two men collided actively and directly.

Stevenson and his campaign manager, James Finnegan, blamed too hurried a campaign pace for the defeat in Minnesota. Finnegan also blamed Republicans he said crossed party lines to vote for Kefauver.

'Shaker and Shaker.'

Asked whether he should have shaken more hands, as Kefauver did, Stevenson smiled and said:

"There is no doubt handshaking develops a close identity between the shaker and the shaker."

"We traveled too fast. We had too many meetings. It would have been better to take a slower pace—cover the same ground in more time."

Stevenson said Kefauver "won the first round" and "seems to me I am no longer the front-runner. I gather that from the newspapers."

He said his own plans are unchanged, and that so are his ideas.

"I have tried to tell the people the truth," he said. "I always will. I have not promised them the moon. And I never will."

"This may not be the way to win elections but it is, in my opinion, the way to conduct a political campaign in a democracy."

He brushed aside a question as to whether Kefauver promised voters the moon in Minnesota. He said he would not enter into personalities with Kefauver in future primaries. There were trials again in Alaska April 24, Florida May 29 and California June 5.

Stevenson looked tired. But he smiled often, and he exchanged pleasantries with 100 reporters jammed into his campaign headquarters.

'Eisenhower Should Worry.'

Stevenson said the fact so many persons asked for Democratic ballots in Minnesota "was a smashing repudiation of the present Administration and a 2-to-1 endorsement of Democratic principles by the people of Minnesota."

He said if anyone should worry about the results it should be President Eisenhower—"maybe more than me."

"I consider the results full notice that the great swing back to democratic principles which started in 1954 is even stronger in 1956," Stevenson said.

"I do not propose to conjecture about the possibility that thousands of loyal Republicans may have voted in the Democratic primary for the cynical purpose of damaging the Democratic party in Minnesota or me," he said.

Finnegan pursued the subject of Republicans crossing party lines further. He said there were indications 120,000 to 180,000 Minnesota Republicans switched parties, "either because they were completely dissatisfied with the Administration or in an attempt to embarrass the Democratic-Farmer-Labor party (the Minnesota Democratic organization.)"

He quoted Minnesota Democratic leaders as saying some of the state's smaller newspapers had suggested the Republicans cross party lines, and he said the implications were that "a great many Republicans who didn't switch voted for Kefauver."

Anti-Stevenson Meetings.

Finnegan said—in response to a reporter's question about a "secret" anti-Stevenson meeting of western Democratic leaders—that there was such a meeting in Denver about two weeks ago. He said the chairman was Frank McKinney, Democratic national chairman under President Truman. He said the purpose was to align support for the presidential candidacy of New York Gov. Averell Harriman. He said "representatives—or alleged representatives—of about 12" state Democratic groups attended.

"I understand that no commitments were made," he said.

In Colorado, however, Democratic leaders with the presidential ambitions of Harriman said that if there was such a meeting, they were not invited.

Stephen A. Mitchell, Stevenson's 1952 campaign manager who has been campaigning for him this year in Illinois, said later the Minnesota results should "be a spur to Stevenson supporters." Stevenson is not opposed in his home state's primary April 10. "I have not seen any indication of disaffection (for Stevenson) in Illinois," Mitchell said.

"In politics," the former Democratic national chairman said, "votes are what count. I'm not much for alibis. The result of the vote in Minnesota was a setback."

"That means Stevenson must

South Carolina Democrats Seek More Party Recognition for South

Recess Until After National Convention in Move That Could Leave Way Open for Third Party.

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 22 (party, Thomas A. Wofford of (AP)—South Carolina Democrats began today a self-assumed leadership of a drive seeking more recognition for the South from the national party.

Their biennial convention recessed yesterday until after the national convention in a way that would permit formation of a third party. The convention also urged other southern states to do the same.

The racial segregation issue was uppermost in the minds of the more than 500 delegates who overrode the resolutions committee in recessing the convention. The committee wanted the recess put on a "maybe" basis.

The next meeting will come not later than Aug. 27, two weeks after the national convention.

The leadership resolution calls for a caucus of national convention delegates from other southern states before the national convention.

Gov. George Bell Timmerman advocated Southern unity and made no mention of a third reduced his efforts to get through to the people, so they will see his quality as compared to the others.

"You don't win by losing. Something has happened to deteriorate Stevenson's position in Minnesota in the last year and I don't know what it is."

KEFAUVER HOPES SOAR IN WEST

By EDWARD A. HARRIS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, March 22—Democratic leaders pledged to Adlai E. Stevenson, still recovering today from the shock of his defeat in Minnesota, acknowledged privately they now face an uphill battle to beat Estes Kefauver in the June 5 California primary election.

Overnight the entire political psychology of California has changed in the Democratic war councils. A wave of tremendous optimism among the campaign leaders of Senator Kefauver appears to be surging through the state, attracting many independents and Democrats who heretofore were on the fence.

Stevenson strategists on the other hand, are hard put to convince their delegation. Publicly they talk of a revolt among Republicans in Minnesota against the Administration farm program, with Republicans taking to the Democratic primary there to support Kefauver. But privately they fear that Kefauver's basic campaign pattern of attacking the "political bosses" backing Stevenson may prove to be just as effective among the voters in California as in Minnesota.

Here, as in Minnesota, most of the Democratic leaders jumped on the Stevenson bandwagon early in the year in an effort to discourage opposition. Seeking to make political capital out of this apparent disadvantage, Kefauver has stumped California several times, and now begins another fast round of campaigning, emphasizing the theme that no one is for him "except the people."

Actually there is little or no political machine in California Democratic activities, but there was considerable resentment in Kefauver circles and among some independent voters as well as Democratic voters when 80 per cent of the party's top leaders came out for Stevenson even prior to Stevenson's announcement he would again be a candidate.

Among the Kefauver holdouts is Mrs. Clara Shirpene, Democratic national committeewoman, who refused to budge from her Kefauver allegiance of 1952. National Committeewoman Paul Ziffren is one of Stevenson's top strategists here, and Attorney General Edmund (Pat) Brown is Stevenson's state campaign chairman. Brown is the Democrat holding the highest elective office in California.

Even in advance of the stunning Minnesota upset, Kefauver had picked up rank-and-file strength in California as a result of his appearance with Stevenson before the state's Organization of Democratic Clubs in Fresno. There were com-

BRITISH ARREST 3 OF THEIR OWN CYPRUS GUARDS

Soldiers Too Tough on Islanders—Man Who Tried to Kill Governor Hunted.

NICOSIA, Cyprus, March 22 (UPI)—Britain arrested three of its own security guards today on charges they mistreated Cypriots suspected of underground anti-British violence.

Officials refused to detail the names of the men, but the arrests indicated some of the soldiers had taken the new "get tough" policy too literally.

Expert police investigators concentrated their efforts today on finding Neophytes Sophaclous, a Cypriot domestic servant suspected of attempting to assassinate Sir John Harding, British governor of the island, with a time bomb.

Sophocles, a servant on Harding's household staff for six months, did not show up for work yesterday when an unexploded bomb was found under the mattress of the governor's bed.

Police cordoned off his house in Paphos and organized an island-wide hunt for him.

Police theorized the bomb might have been assembled in the house from parts carried through security guards over a period of time. It was a pencil-type explosive used in World War II. Police said it probably was too old to explode, thus Harding's life was saved.

Harding, when told yesterday of the discovery of the bomb, commented: "And I slept better than usual last night."

It was the second abortive attempt to kill Harding. On Nov. 26 a bomb exploded at a ball beneath a chair the Governor was to have occupied, but he did not show up for the dance.

A gang of masked Cypriots entered a coffee shop in Karavostasi near the Xeros copper mining district 40 miles west of Nicosia last night and lined up all the customers. They picked out one, a former Greek policeman, and shot him dead.

Greek Cypriots won support from Egyptian Premier Nasser yesterday. Greek Minister of State Gregory Cassimatis said in Cairo that Nasser assured him of his "wholehearted support for the Cypriots' demand for self determination."

plaints among the delegates who heard Stevenson that he had talked over their heads, that he dealt too much in generalizations instead of specific issues, and that he was too "inert" in his campaign approach.

Senator Kefauver, on the other hand, won admiration for his simple approach, his discussion of many specific issues and his stand on enforcing the desegregation ruling of the Supreme Court. Negro Democrats in particular were attracted to the Kefauver banner after his Fresno appearance.

COUNTY TO SPEND $550,000 FOR HOSPITAL INTERN HOUSING, MORGUE

Appropriation Approved by Council Will Come From Proceeds of Sale of 1954 Bond Issue.

An ordinance appropriating $550,000 from 1954 St. Louis county bond issue funds for construction of a staff apartment building for interns and residents of the County Hospital and for a morgue, was passed unanimously yesterday by the County Council.

The money, which also would be used for repairs and improvements to the hospital's electrical system, would come from the proceeds of the previous sale of $1,750,000 of the bonds. The bond issue included a total of $3,458,500 for hospital purposes.

Dr. Curtis H. Lohr, hospital commissioner, said plans and specifications for the apartment building and morgue, which will be on the hospital grounds, have been approved by the Citizens Bond Issue Public Works Advisory (Watching) Committee and by the council.

Details of Apartments.

Dr. Lohr said the staff apartment building will be a three-story brick structure with 18 apartments for staff physicians and interns and will cost about $400,000. Each apartment will consist of a living room, two bedrooms, kitchen and bath.

Each apartment will be occupied by a staff member with a family, or by four bachelor staff members. Between 25 and 30 staff men will be housed in the building, Dr. Lohr said. Unmarried resident physicians now live in makeshift quarters in the hospital and married men must find quarters elsewhere.

The county already is advertising for bids for the new building. The bids will be opened April 11.

An estimated $70,000 will be spent to convert a storage area in the northeast wing of the hospital to a morgue. This will replace the present inadequate morgue. Bids will be asked in the near future.

Proposal Approved.

A proposal, under which the County Housing Authority would make an annual payment in lieu of taxes on the proposed 600 units of public housing for which a federal grant is now being sought, was approved by the council.

John J. McAtee, attorney for the housing authority, said such an agreement of the tax-exempt project is required by the federal Public Housing Administration. He said the payment would amount to 10 per cent of the net dwelling rental, which he described as the gross rent less the cost of public utilities.

The payment would be pro-rated among the various taxing agencies in the area of the projects and he estimated about 75 per cent would go to the appropriate school districts. The agreement is similar to one in effect in the City of St. Louis, he added.

Bar on Obscene Books.

A proposed ordinance prohibiting the sale and exhibition of obscene and crime-enticing publications to minors was referred by the council to the County League of Municipalities for study. Action on the bill at the council's last meeting was suspended when four members left the meeting, thereby depriving it of a quorum.

A petition by the Village of Marlborough to extend its limits to include a triangular area extending west from LaSalle Station road for about one-half mile along the south side of U.S. Highway 66 was approved. John T. Sluggett III, attorney for the village, said a second proposal to annex about 80 acres lying south of U.S. 66 was dropped when opposition developed among the area's residents.

The council passed a resolution declaring an emergency in the west central part of the county and established a quarantine because of a high incidence of rabies. Council Chairman Harold D. Carey, who issued a proclamation to the same

TWO MEN KILLED BRESNAHAN WINS WHEN THEIR AUTO ACQUITTAL ON IS HIT BY TRAIN BRIBERY CHARGE

Station Wagon Wrecked by Missouri Pacific Colorado Eagle at Sulphur Avenue.

Gus Stoppkotte, 3211 Ivanhoe avenue, and Leo J. O'Malley, 4933A Lindenwood avenue, were killed yesterday when a station wagon in which they were riding was struck by a Missouri Pacific Colorado Eagle passenger train at Sulphur avenue.

Stoppkotte, who was driving, was 54 years old and O'Malley was 68. Both were employed by the Metropolitan Sewer District.

Police were told that Stoppkotte was driving west on Manchester avenue and made a left turn into Sulphur as the train reached the crossing going about 60 miles an hour, which is a permissible speed at that point.

The engineer, Richard Walker, said he was sounding the horn, and the crossing lights were flashing. The watchman had gone off duty at 4 o'clock. Walker said he applied the brakes and put the engine in reverse, but it was too late.

The locomotive struck the rear part of the station wagon, and knocked it 43 feet. The occupants were thrown out. An automobile parked about 100 feet from the crossing was hit by a wheel from the station wagon, and another machine, about 50 feet away, was struck by a door.

The train was stopped about 70 feet beyond the crossing. It was delayed 25 minutes.

Steve Sullivan, 3060 Bayard avenue, said he was walking about 15 feet from the track when he saw that a crash was likely, and ran. A skid chain from the station wagon was thrown around his left leg and he was cut on the leg by a piece of metal.

CONSTABLE MARTIN HEUTEL HURT IN AUTO COLLISION

Constable Martin H. Heutel of the Fourth Magistrate District, St. Louis county, suffered a broken left knee and bruises on his head in a collision of automobiles on Vandover road at the Frisco railroad tracks south of Valley Park yesterday.

Heutel said he was driving north and a southbound machine operated by Andrew F. Wideman, 22 Front street, Valley Park, swerved into the left lane and hit Heutel's car. Heutel was taken to St. Joseph Hospital, and a man and woman passenger were treated at St. Louis County Hospital for bruises and released.

WORKED ON REPORTS.

The former deputy said he and Harry D. Newbold, who was a captain in the sheriff's office, went to the courthouse shortly before 1 p.m. He and Newbold spent the afternoon working on reports, including a report of Mrs. Vugrich's arrest, Bresnan testified.

Ten witnesses, including Newbold, took the stand for the defense to challenge Mrs. Vugrich's testimony. Mrs. Arthur C. Mosley, wife of the former sheriff, was a defense witness.

In their arguments to the jury, Assistant Prosecuting At-

Foreman Says Jury Felt Midwife's Story of Paying $1500 Didn't 'Stand Up.'

Hugh J. Bresnan, former St. Louis county deputy sheriff, was acquitted by a circuit court jury at Clayton last night of a charge that he accepted a $1500 bribe from a midwife to help her avoid prosecution for performing an illegal operation.

The jury of nine men and three women deliberated three hours and 45 minutes before announcing its verdict at 8:45 p.m. in the court of Judge Raymond E. LaDriere.

Donal W. Henry, 11 Glynn drive, Florissant, the foreman, said the first ballot was six for acquittal and an equal number undecided. Unanimous agreement on acquittal was reached after five ballots.

Henry said the jury felt the testimony of Mrs. Mary Vugrich that she paid Bresnan $1500 Feb. 13, 1953, the day after she was arrested at her home after the 3200 block of Lucas-Hunt road, was largely uncorroborated.

Impressed by Summation.

Henry said he personally was impressed by the summation by Defense Counsel Walter Wehrle, who declared Mrs. Vugrich's story "did not add up, since she was charged with performing an illegal operation."

Mrs. Vugrich, who now lives on a farm near Edwardsville, pleaded guilty last Jan. 20, and was fined $1000 by Judge LaDriere on the abortion charge.

Charge of oppression in office still is pending against Bresnan, now a tavern operator in town.

The charge, a misdemeanor, alleged that the former deputy attempted to obtain money from a liquor operator to assist in avoiding prosecution of the man for violating liquor laws.

The train was stopped about 70 feet beyond the crossing. It was delayed 25 minutes.

Steve Sullivan, 3060 Bayard avenue, said he was walking about 15 feet from the track when he saw that a crash was likely, and ran. A skid chain from the station wagon was thrown around his left leg and he was cut on the leg by a piece of metal.

Donald Gill, cook at the Windsor Coffee Shop, 4207 Linden boulevard, was held up early today by an armed man, who fled with $70.

Gill said the robber ordered him to place the contents of the cash register in a paper bag.

After obtaining the money, he ran out.

CITY SEEKS MORE AIRLINE SERVICE TO SOUTHEAST

Lberman Tells C.A.B. of 4 Applications for Routes to Atlanta, Miami Areas.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 22—City Counselor Samuel H. Liberman of St. Louis urged the Civil Aeronautics Board today to give the city increased commercial airline service to cities in the southeast, particularly Atlanta, Tampa and Miami.

In a statement at a pre-hearing conference with CAB Examiner William J. Madden, Liberman said present service between St. Louis and these three cities "falls far short of our requirements" the city feels it is "justly entitled" to additional service, he added.

Liberman said four major airlines had filed applications asking the board to permit them to provide the St. Louis-Southeast service. He listed them as Braniff Airways, Trans World Airlines, Delta Air Lines and National Airlines.

Liberman opposed motions by Minneapolis, St. Paul, Omaha, Nashville, Kansas City, Dallas and Fort Worth to consolidate the proceedings with their pending applications for more airline service. He also opposed Eastern Airlines' move to set aside St. Louis's place on the C.A.B. hearing schedule for a place farther back on the calendar.

Eastern, he pointed out, is the only airline no authorized to provide service to the southeast from St. Louis, including non-stop flights to Atlanta, Tampa and Miami.

At the conclusion of the conference, interested parties were given 10 days to file formal motions which will be considered by the board.

The pre-hearing conference, ordered by CAB Chief Examiner Francis W. Brown, was to determine the issue and scope of the city's request. A formal hearing will be held about a month from now.

Liberman pointed out that St. Louis has "one of the largest and most modern" airports in the country, representing an investment of about $23,000,000.

"More important, perhaps, is the fact that from both a geographical and a historical standpoint, St. Louis has long been a natural gateway to the south and southeast," he added.

TWO MISSOURI SENATORS FIGHT CHANGE IN BILL

The Post-Dispatch said the GAO would not necessarily require signed contracts as proof the money had been legally obligated, but might accept a letter of intent under some circumstances.

Officials of the House Appropriations Committee and the Park Service, which has jurisdiction over the memorial site, said only signed contracts could legally obligate the federal funds.

Owen A. Kane, legislative attorney for the accounting office, said, however, that the GAO "does consider some letters of intent as obligating contracts" if it is satisfied that they are sincere.

In this event, he explained, the letters can state that the agency involved is obligating the money and will go ahead with the work. The letters can specify that detailed plans will be prepared later and actual contracts signed then.

Curtis Seeks Ruling.

Representative Thomas B. Curtis (Rep.), St. Louis, has asked the GAO, which reviews Government contracts, for a formal ruling, saying it is the responsibility of the accounting office, not the Park Service, to make the determination.

The $3,000,000 appropriation would be the federal contribution to the work of relocating railroad tracks on the St. Louis levee and grading the riverfront site, as steps toward ultimate development of the area as the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial.

Representative H. R. Gross (Rep.), Iowa, who raised the point of order which crippled the bill, said his action was prompted by a feeling that the House Appropriations Committee had stepped into the legislative field by inserting the provision permitting the $3,000,000 to remain available until spent.

He told the Post-Dispatch he had not talked with anyone from St. Louis about the memorial project.

Representative Karl M. Lecompte (Rep.), Iowa, chairman of the House Committee which approved the 1954 bill authorizing the riverfront project, said he had received only one letter of complaint, from a St. Louis physician.

Lecompte told the Post-Dispatch he had discussed the riverfront project frequently with Gross and found him "opposed" to it.

ments of the automobile industry—should be checked.

Weeks said there are some "weak spots" in the economy. He reported automobile business is off slightly, residential construction somewhat down, and "the agriculture picture is not what we would like."

However, there are many strong features, he added. A Department of Commerce survey showed that expenditures for new plants and equipment would increase 22 per cent this year. He emphasized that employment is up, unemployment down, and that the demand for steel is strong with the backlog of orders still being built up.

"We have a dynamic economy," Weeks declared. "New industries have been created and new products are being developed. Investments in aviation, for instance, have increased from 40 billion dollars in 1948 to 100 billion, and it is estimated the investment will increase to 150 billion in 1960."

The Republican cabinet officer touched briefly on political subjects on several occasions. Paraphrasing the G.O.P. campaign theme, he said "the goals of any Administration, regardless of its politics, are peace and prosperity."

Weeks also gave a favorable report on President Eisenhower, saying: "The boss looks well, acts well, is keeping busy and is doing all right."

Weeks, who remained in St. Louis overnight, visited the Commerce Department field office at the Federal building this morning.

Later he went to Lambert-St.

Louis Field, where he was met by Barak T. Mattingly, former Republican national committee chairman for Missouri. The Secretary inspected the new terminal building and the control tower at the field before leaving on his return flight to Washington.

St. Louis Needs Outlined.

Richmond C. Coburn, board chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, outlined needs for further development of the St. Louis metropolitan area in a talk at the dinner.

He said one of the important problems is the "functional integration" of St. Louis and St. Louis county. The "artificial" boundaries between the city and county municipalities are becoming "meaningless," he declared.

Coburn recommended that establishment of a downtown helicopter landing strip, for use in providing shuttle service from outlying airports, be studied. He said the riverfront or plaza areas might be used for this purpose.

He stressed the importance of attracting new industry to St. Louis by development of a new industrial area, and referred to a study being made of Columbia Bottoms as a site for industrial expansion.

It also has been suggested, he added, that a large stadium be built to accommodate major athletic contests and other events. Coburn said this would help attract visitors to the city.

PINEAU INVITES DULLES, LLOYD TO MIDEAST TALKS

today scheduled the opening of the Council meeting for 3 p.m. Monday.

In effect, the United States resolution was designed to conform with seemingly contrary positions on the Middle East conflict taken by President Elsenhower and Hammarskjold. Mr. Eisenhower recently suggested that peace should be reached through U.N. action. Hammarskjold had maintained on his return from the Mideast that the U.N. should remain an agency of observation and mediation.

Hammarskjold would be instructed to expand and personify those powers, now invested in the U.N. truce supervision organization, headed by Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada.

He would not, however, in the terms of the resolution, possess punitive powers. He would be instructed to report his conclusions to the Security Council within 30 days.

On his recent return from conferences with Arab and Israeli leaders, Hammarskjold said that war in the Middle East was not imminent, despite repeated border violence by both sides.

U. S. IS CONCERNED.

Despite this view, the United States has made no secret that it was disturbed by the growing threat of war and by Russian invasion of the Middle East by way of the munitions factories.

The United States resolution was circulated after extended conferences among British and French delegations and with Hammarskjold, who discussed its terms and other problems with Russian, Arab and Jewish spokesmen.

It was understood that Moscow would not oppose it if it was submitted by a single Western delegation without having the appearance of a Western bloc "peace offensive" which it might be termed if Britain and France became co-sponsors.

Reports of preliminary consultations indicated the resolution would be accepted unanimously in the Security Council and that Hammarskjold would soon thereafter embark on his mission to the Middle East.

They doubt, however, that his advisers have told him just what the chances of war are, how necessary it is for the West to prepare to avert it and how the loss of oil supplies, which would be the first result of a war, would cripple Britain, the United States's chief ally, and other west European nations.

If war begins—many well-informed officials are beginning to say "when war begins"—Britain is prepared to move first with troops, planes and ships. That is a matter of immediate national interest, but Britain will not have to move, it is emphasized, if the United States prepares to act and is known to be prepared to act.

In explaining their position, high British sources repeatedly emphasize the Baghdad pact as the "last instrument" left to the West for the defense of the Middle East against Soviet political and economic aggression.

The object of this action would be to prevent both the spread and continuation in the Middle East.

Preparation of this plan has been accompanied by intensive diplomatic efforts to convince every government in the Middle East of the disastrous consequences, including a third world war, of any outbreak of hostilities in that region.

WAR CHANCES RISE.

This British activity reflects the overwhelming importance the government attaches to preventing an outbreak of conflict and its conviction that the chances of war are increasing daily. Government sources give the impression that, although it is all very well to count on the best outcome under the auspices of the United Nations, it is just as well to prepare for the worst.

"Almost without noticing it, we have passed from the post-war into the prewar era," said a British official of international reputation and high attainment. "We know it. I hope you know it in Washington."

This emphasis on the importance of United States understanding runs through the remarks of high civilian and military officials. The British know that President Eisenhower understands what he has termed the catastrophic consequences of a war in the Middle East.

They doubt, however, that his advisers have told him just what the chances of war are, how necessary it is for the West to prepare to avert it and how the loss of oil supplies, which would be the first result of a war, would cripple Britain, the United States's chief ally, and other west European nations.

crawled to safety under a white flag of truce after being pinned down under cross-fire.

An Egyptian military spokesman said the battle started after two Israeli military cars and a half-track vehicle crossed 150 meters into Egyptian-occupied territory and fired on an Egyptian post. He said there were no Egyptian casualties.

In Jerusalem, an Israeli military spokesman reported a landmine exploded last night under a farm vehicle southeast of the Gaza strip, injuring 11 persons. He said 30 Israeli settlers were riding the tractor-drawn vehicle. The observers eventually

SOME RAILROADS PLAN 5 PCT. RISE IN BASIC FARES

Eastern and Western Lines Give Notice—ICC to Look Into Passenger Losses.

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—The eastern and western railroads today gave notice they propose to increase their basic passenger fares by 5 per cent on May 1.

The disclosure followed an announcement by the Interstate Commerce Commission of a general investigation into the railroads' multi-million-dollar losses on passenger train service.

Attorneys for the eastern and western lines went to the ICC with petitions for permission to skip certain procedural steps so the proposed 5 per cent hike might be made effective on May 1 by a simple 30-day notice to the public.

Such public notices are subject to protest and to blocking action by the commission. In the absence of such action, however, the rate change automatically becomes effective.

The proposed increase covers all passenger train service west of the Mississippi river and in the states east of that river and north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers.

The South was not included in the proceeding.

In connection with the proposed rate advance, spokesmen for the eastern railroads said the carriers in that area alone had a loss of $232,500,000 in 1954 on passenger service.

The ICC early this month granted the railroads another 6 per cent increase in freight rates after they sought a 7 per cent hike. Rail executives said at that time that if the full increase was not granted, additional rate hikes for rail service would have to be sought.

B. Padrick of Chicago, chairman of the Transcontinental Passenger Association, said commutation or suburban fares would not be affected by the petition.

He said the increase sought would boost one-way first-class fares in western territory slightly less than two-tenths of a cent a mile. One-way coach fares would be increased a little over one-tenth cent a mile.

Present general basic western fares are 3.6 cents a mile first class and 2½ cents a mile coach.

Proportionate increases are proposed for round-trip fares, Padrick added.

Padrick said the last general increase in western passenger fares was made in 1948.

A spokesman said the 5 per cent rate boost sought also would apply to the family plan, where children traveling with their parents are given reduced rates.

Approval of state commissions would be required before the rates could be increased on travel limited to points within a state.

EAST ST. LOUIS BABY DIES IN FIRE AT HOME

Mother Away—Asked Neighbor to Watch House—Stove Blamed.

Helen Nash, 18-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. West Nash, was burned to death today when fire swept through their home at 1410 Tudor avenue, East St. Louis.

The child's mother, Mrs. Dorothy Nash, had gone to a grocery and had asked a neighbor to watch the house. Mrs. Nash had been gone about five minutes when the place burst into flames. The Nashes are Negroes.

Firemen said the house was practically enveloped by flames when they arrived. They said the fire was started by an overheated coal stove in the living room, where the body of Helen was found on a couch.

The child was pronounced dead at the scene by Deputy Coroner John J. Kassly. The body had been burned on the chest, head and legs.

Damage was estimated at $300 to the one-story house and $300 to the contents by firemen. The father was at work at the time at St. Louis Casting Co.

Damage was estimated at $300 to the one-story house and $300 to the contents by firemen. The father was at work at the time at St. Louis Casting Co.

Men said the house was practically enveloped by flames when they arrived. They said the fire was started by an overheated coal stove in the living room, where the body of Helen was found on a couch.

The child was pronounced dead at the scene by Deputy Coroner John J. Kassly. The body had been burned on the chest, head and legs.

COURT FIGHT IF UNION IS OUSTED

Says Teamsters Will Resist Any AFL-CIO Suspension Over Loan to Longshoremen.

By A. H. RASKIN
The New York Times Service
(Copyright 1956 by The New York Times Co.)

HONOLULU, March 22 — Dave Beck served notice here yesterday that the International Brotherhood of Teamsters would fight in the courts any move to suspend it from the merged labor movement.

The president of the 1,300,000 member union made his threat in response to warnings that the teamsters faced an ouster from the AFL-CIO if they went through with a promised $400,000 loan to the International Longshoremen's Association. The ILA was expelled from the old AFL in 1954 on charges of gangster domination. Whether to force an immediate showdown with the AFL-CIO will be considered by the teamsters' general executive board at a meeting opening here Monday.

The original commitment to aid the orphaned pier union was made by James R. Hoffa of Detroit, international vice president of the teamsters and head of the organization's central states conference. He assured the ILA that teamster units in the Midwest, South and East would deposit $400,000 in a Chicago bank March 7 to pay the dock union's debts and help finance a joint organization campaign on the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts.

Payment was held up at Beck's request. He intervened after AFL-CIO President George Meany had made it plain that the teamsters would jeopardize their status in the merged labor movement if they helped a union ousted for racketeering.

Beck, a vice president of the AFL-CIO, denied that the parent labor group had any constitutional authority to take punitive action against the teamsters for entering into "working arrangements" with the longshore union.

Despite his emphasis on the right of regional teamster groups to aid the ILA, Beck revealed that his own advice to his subsidiary units had been against making the loan at all. He said he opposed it on the ground that most of the money was to go to John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, who lent the bankrupt pier union almost $400,000 in the period when it was battling to keep from being destroyed by an AFL rival.

"I saw no reason why Lewis shouldn't wait for his money instead of having the ILA borrow from our regional conferences," Beck said.

When Hoffa and his associates decided to disregard this advice, Beck lost no time in making it plain that he held no grudge. The international union lent the money to the regional groups so they in turn could lend it to the ILA. However, the checks from teamster headquarters never were cashed. They were returned when Meany's warning prompted Beck to ask that the whole issue be put up to the executive board.

Beck emphasized that his reservations about the wisdom of financial assistance to the ILA were not intended to cast doubt on the importance to the teamsters of a working alliance with the dock union. He said such co-operation was the key to large-scale unionization of unorganized workers, particularly in the South.

Beck discounted fears that the tie-up with the ILA would foster union racketeering. He said his union would not work with anyone proved guilty of corruption, but he demanded that "solid evidence" be provided to substantiate any racket charges.

BANK GETS BACK
MONEY FOR MISSING
MILLION U.S. NOTE

NEW YORK, March 22 (AP) — The $1,000,000 United States Treasury note missing from the Chase Manhattan Bank still has not turned up—but the bank got its money back yesterday.

An officer said the bank had entered a claim for the loss with 18 insurance companies acting as surety and that they had paid the $1,000,000 to the bank.

"Nobady will lose any money over it, though," a bank spokesman said. "The insurance companies eventually can get their money back from the Government."

The bank discovered March 6 that the Treasury note was missing. Diligent search failed to reveal any trace of it.

The not is negotiable by anyone, theoretically, but anyone trying to cash it would face extensive questioning.

URGES INCLUDING NURSING HOME CARE IN INSURANCE

NEW YORK, March 22 (AP) — A government health expert suggested yesterday that hospital insurance be broadened to cover prolonged medical care at home or in nursing homes.

Charles L. Schottland, social security commissioner for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, told a luncheon meeting: "There are now 101,000,000 people in this country who have some form of insurance against hospital costs. Only a fraction of them, however, have insurance that covers nursing home care. . . . No threat to economic security can be greater than that of long-term illness."

LAWMAKERS NEARLY FIGHT OVER POSTS FOR GENERALS

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — The House passed bills allowing two retired Army generals to take immigration service posts yesterday after debate that brought an invitation from one member to another to "meet me outside."

The exchange came between Representative Wayne Hays (Dem., Ohio), and Representative Sieminski (Dem.), New Jersey, and concerned the head of the immigration service, retired Gen. J. N. Swing. Finally the House by standing vote approved a bill allowing Brig. Gen. Edwin B. Partridge became assistant commissioner for field inspections and security, and on voice vote, a similar measure letting Maj. Gen. Frank H. Partridge became assistant border patrol commissioner. Both bills now go to the White House.

PENTAGON APPROVES MOST HOOVER IDEAS

85 Pct. of Study's Recommendations in Effect,
Wilson Says.

WASHINGTON, March 22
(AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson reported yesterday his department subscribed to 85 per cent of the 332 recommendations made for it by the Hoover commission.

He gave the numbers in a report to President Eisenhower who had spoken earlier in the day at his news conference of the achievements of the commission, headed by former President Hoover.

The commission undertook a broad study of how to improve operations of the Government, in which the Defense Department is the biggest single agency. Both Mr. Eisenhower and Wilson praised the commission's work.

However, Wilson said that in some instances, "we have felt it advisable to use different methods to obtain the same goals."

Wilson rejected a commission finding that better teamwork and more effective management could be achieved at the Pentagon if offices of five of the present six assistant secretaries of defense were abolished and their responsibilities given to the remaining four with added authority.

Wilson also rejected the recommendation that a high level civilian be appointed to "hold a tighter rein" over planning and review of military requirements.

Wilson explained his objections by saying that the huge Defense Department has only 10 vice presidents whereas some industry organizations have up to 90.

Wilson also said that co-ordination of military requirements planning could not be achieved through "exercise of arbitrary authority at the top."

Wilson said he will recommend the appointment of an additional assistant secretary for each of the military departments. The fifth assistant secretary for the Army and the Navy would be in charge of research and development. The Air Force already has such an official.

Wilson also concurred in the commission's recommendation that "conflict of interests" laws be modified so that presidential appointees are "not forced to liquidate lifetime equities."

Wilson was forced to dispose of heavy holdings of stock in the General Motors Corp., before he was confirmed as Secretary by the Senate. He had been president of G.M.

KARSTEN RENEWS APPEAL FOR COUNTY REVENUE OFFICE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

RUSSIA COULDN'T BEAT WEST NOW,
GRUENTHER SAYSHe Warns, However,
That 'Our Shield'
Must Be Reinforced
—Urges Foreign Aid.WASHINGTON, March 22
(UPI)—Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, supreme allied commander in Europe, said today that Russia would lose any war it might start now because of the West's "current superiority in long-range air power."

Gruenther told the House Foreign Affairs Committee, however, that a "danger will continue to exist in Europe until the strength of our shield has been reinforced."

To help provide this additional strength, Gruenther urged Congressional approval of President Eisenhower's $4-$559,975,000 foreign aid program.

Gruenther also told the committee the Russians have undercut the fear of attack on Europe by "their soothing efforts" to show they want peace. He said it has become "increasingly difficult to have the NATO populations realize that . . . the military potential of the Soviet bloc is increasing constantly."

Testimony Released.

Gruenther testified at a closed session. His formal statement to the committee was made public, but his answers to committee members' questions were not.

He said Russia and its satellites now have 235 divisions, 22,500 military planes, and 400 submarines.

"This tremendous military machine," he said, is armed with modern weapons.

Committee Chairman James P. Richards (Dem.), South Carolina, questioned whether the enthusiasm of this country's European allies for collective security is "cooling off."

The committee also called Secretary of State Dulles, who returned yesterday from a 10-day Asian tour, to testify today.

By the Associated Press.

Reports from Dulles' Asian tour indicated he remains convinced that the Administration's proposal for limited long-range foreign aid authority is important to the success of the American aim of keeping the Asian countries outside the Communist orbit.

Gray Testifies.

This long-range aid proposal has encountered considerable congressional opposition, though it did not figure importantly in yesterday's hearing on the program by the House committee.

Assistant Secretary of Defense Gordon Gray yesterday endorsed as important to this nation's own defense effort the three billion dollars in new military aid money Mr. Eisenhower is requesting.

Gray acknowledged that the request was "large" but defended it as necessary to make up for the small appropriations of the past two years.

MICHIGAN U. EX-PRESIDENT
TALKS ON A COLLEGE'S SIZE

There is no limit on the size to which a university may grow and still perform its function well, provided its facilities and faculty are expanded in proportion to the student body, Alexander G. Ruthven, president emeritus of the University of Michigan, said here last night. He addressed an alumni dinner meeting at the Gatesworth Hotel.

Ruthven, who was president from 1929 to 1951, discussed the university's plans for spending $110,000,000 on new buildings in the next 10 years. He said the university, which now has 23,000 students, expects to be able to handle 35,000 by 1960 and 40,000 by 1970. The number of students, he said, is a statistic that has no significance except in relation to size of faculty and physical plant.

Alan McCarthy, director of the university's development council, spoke of need for funds from alumni to assist the expanding Ann Arbor institution. Last year, it was said, 4 percent of Michigan's alumni contributed $150,000. Byron Mays, president of the St. Louis alumni group, presided at the dinner, which marked the 139th anniversary of the founding of the university.

P.T.A. COUNCIL APPROVES
PROPOSED SCHOOL TAX LEVY

The proposed school tax levy of $1.30 on the $100 assessed valuation was approved in a resolution adopted today by the St. Louis Council of Parent-Teacher Associations. Mrs. Sam J. Ryker, president, announced.

The levy is "vitally necessary if we are to continue our present fine educational systems," the council said. "Its defeat would disastrously handicap all school services," the resolution stated. The council, which represents 45 P.T.A. groups in the city with a membership of 8,000, said: "The fate of our children hangs in the balance on April 12."

The resolution pointed out that failure to approve the levy would mean the tax rate would automatically fall to 89 cents, the maximum established by the state Constitution without voter approval.

This would mean, the council said, not only a loss of local revenue from the taxes, but it would make St. Louis ineligible for more than $5,000,000 in state funds under the foundation program for school aid.

GOOSSENS FINED; IMPORTED PORNOGRAPHIC MATERIAL

SYDNEY, Australia, March 22 (AP)—Sir Eugene Goossens, famed British symphony conductor, pleaded guilty today to a charge of importing pornographic material into Australia. He was fined the maximum $223.

Goossens, conductor of the Sydney symphony and former conductor of the Cincinnati (O.) Symphony, did not appear in court. His attorney, J. W. Shand, entered the guilty plea and said the musician is in a state of physical and mental collapse.

Shand told Magistrate M. J. McCauley it would be disclosed that the pornographic material was "brought out as the result of threats of another." The material was seized when Goossens returned March 9 after a five-month visit to England and Europe. Subsequently Goossens announced he had been relieved of his duties temporarily at his own request.

PROSECUTOR SAYS U.S. OVERRULED HIM IN LATTIMORE CASE

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—United States Attorney Leo A. Rover has disclosed the Justice Department overruled him on one phase of the Owen Lattimore perjury case.

The Government eventually dropped the prosecution without bringing Lattimore, a Far Eastern specialist, to trial.

In the course of the long drawn out case, Rover, representing the United States, filed an affidavit accusing United States District Judge Luther W. Youngdahl of being biased in favor of Lattimore. Youngdahl threw out the affidavit as "scandalous" and rejected Rover's demand that he disqualify himself.

Testifying before the Senate District Committee Tuesday on his nomination as chief justice of the municipal court of appeals here, Rover said he recommended the Justice Department appeal Youngdahl's rejection of the affidavit. No appeal was ever filed.

Rover filed the affidavit after Youngdahl threw out the key count of a 1952 indictment against Lattimore. It alleged he was a promoter and sympathizer of Communist causes.

SMALL BUSINESSES TAX HELP HITS SNAG

Senator Byrd Backs Treasury Against Lower Levy on Initial Earnings.

The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Company)

WASHINGTON, March 22—Senators seeking immediate tax relief for small business ran into formidable opposition yesterday and staged a tactical retreat.

However, "hearings and full consideration" of the proposal that this session were promised by the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, Harry F. Byrd (Dem.), Virginia.

The pledge was given to Senator J. William Fulbright (Dem.), Arkansas, in a finance committee hearing on a bill to postpone for another year automatic corporation and excise (sales) tax cuts scheduled for April 1.

Fulbright proposed a rate reduction on the first $25,000 of corporation earnings as an amendment to the measure. He had the backing of 11 other Senators—eight Democrats and three Republicans—as co-sponsors of the amendment.

Administration Opposition.
But the Administration registered opposition in a letter from George M. Humphrey, Secretary of the Treasury, and Senator Byrd supported the Secretary's position. They held that Congress would not have time before April 1 to give the proposal adequate consideration.

The pending bill, passed by the House last week, would postpone the expiration of Korean-war rates on corporation income, liquor, cigarettes, gasoline and motor vehicles to avert a $3 billion dollar loss in government revenues.

Corporations are now taxed at 30 per cent on the first $25,000 of earnings and 52 per cent on the rest. Unless Congress acts, the levies will drop to 25 and 47 per cent, respectively, on April 1.

Fulbright's Proposal.

Fulbright proposed taxes of 22 per cent on the first $25,000 and 53 per cent on the rest. He estimated this would produce a net increase of $20,000,000 in annual government revenues by reducing taxes on corporations earning less than $225,000 and raising them on those earning more.

Humphrey's letter said:

"We simply cannot afford the revenue loss. And even if there were to be a tax reduction on any such scale, I would be opposed to having it all go to a reduction of business taxes when individuals are certainly entitled to major consideration as soon as any tax relief is possible."

KEFAUVER HITS G.O.P. AND HEADS FOR CALIFORNIA

Derides 'Peace and Prosperity' Theme—Backers Plan Write-In Drive in Oregon.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., March 22 (AP)—"Peace and prosperity is the theme of the Republican campaign this year," Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, said last night, "but the peace is uneasy and so is the prosperity."

Kefauver, bolstered by his unexpected Minnesota primary victory, moved westward today to start an intensive campaign for California's 68 votes at the Democratic national convention Aug. 13.

Kefauver holds 26 of 30 Minnesota delegate votes at the national convention.

Adair Stevenson won delegate contests in two congressional districts, delayed returns indicated today. Stevenson was a clear victor in the Fifth (Minneapolis) District. And belated reports today from the northeastern Minnesota Eighth District (Duluth—Iron Range country) apparently assured him of victory there. The vote from 429 of the district's 452 precincts gave Stevenson 31,599 and Kefauver 30,176, lead for Stevenson of 1,423. The St. Louis county auditor's office said the scattered small precincts still missing represented a vote potential of 1,000 to 1,500, 419,016 Democratic Votes.

With 3,640 of 3,868 precincts reported, the Democrats had rolled up 419,016 votes, 238,009 of them for Kefauver. The Republicans had 195,621, of which President Eisenhower held 192,482. Senator William F. Knowland of California, Republican minority leader in the Senate, had the 3139 balance. Knowland had been unable to withdraw from the ballot after the President announced he would be a candidate.

Kefauver paused in Portland where he authorized his supporters to undertake a write-in campaign in the Oregon Democratic presidential primary May 18.

"If they wish to undertake such a campaign, it will be all right with me and I will appreciate it," he told reporters.

No Democrat is entered in the Oregon primary. The state's 16 convention delegates will be required to support the candidate getting the largest number of write-in votes.

Later, on his arrival in San Francisco, Kefauver told reporters: "We are behind here in California and it will be an uphill fight. I think though we will pick up some support."

He was reminded that some political observers were of the opinion that Gov. Averell Harriman of New York might be a possible convention compromise nominee.

"I don't know that in be a fact yet," he commented. "Anyway, I'm still running my own race and I'm not worrying about any other candidates."

Kefauver referred in his Great Falls speech to a Lincoln day talk by Vice President Richard M. Nixon who, Kefauver said, "bragged about the Republicans providing the biggest tax cut in history."

"They did it," he told a Democratic dinner, "but let me point out that without the tax cut we could have had a balanced budget every year of the Eisenhower Administration. We could have made a substantial reduction in the national debt and we could have had an Air Force superior to any in the world."

"No Plans for Peace."

Kefauver charged also that the Eisenhower Administration "obviously does not believe in the possibility of peace. It has utterly failed to prepare for it."

"The people of the world yearn for peace, yet this Administration has prepared not a single prop for our economy in case the time comes when we can safely turn swords into plowshares," he said.

"As a matter of cold fact, if the Soviet Union would today make a concrete and acceptable offer of peaceful relations it would be the most shattering blow which could be delivered to the economy of the United States."

Regarding his Minnesota victory, Kefauver said, he would have considered a 30 per cent vote "a personal victory." He said his showing was a "revolt against the Eisenhower-Benson farm program" and added:

"Between falling incomes on one hand and high prices for what must be bought, on the other, more than a million small farmers have been driven out of farming but this is just fine with the Eisenhower Administration."

The presidential candidate plans two speeches, a press conference, a reception and a number of personal appearances before leaving San Francisco tomorrow morning for Los Angeles.

Pakistan to Form Assembly. KARACHI, March 22 (AP)—The constituent assembly of Pakistan formally ended its life today after a two-hour final session. Tomorrow it becomes a national assembly. The new constitution of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan comes into force then.

MORE WARNINGS ON SPEED LIMITS URGED IN COUNTY

A proposal that all county municipalities post speed limit signs on side streets as well as on state highways, where streets cross municipal boundaries, will be recommended tonight at a meeting of the St. Louis County League of Municipalities at University City, it was announced today.

Meanwhile, the Municipal Judges Association of Greater St. Louis was to meet today to consider replying to a statement by Prosecuting Attorney Edward W. Garnholz of St. Louis that he has received a "considerable number" of complaints from motorists that some county towns operate speed traps.

Mayor Sterling P. Davidson Jr. of Maplewood, chairman of the municipal league, said he would recommend at the meeting tonight that all members urge their city councils to make surveys to be sure that speed limit signs are posted not only at state highway and boundary intersections, but also on side streets where motorists unfamiliar with the municipalities' laws, might be arrested for speeding.

Edward T. Wright, municipal judge of Brentwood and chairman of the judges' association, said his group had spent considerable time trying to build up respect for municipal speed laws.

SOUTH AFRICAN EDUCATOR TO SPEAK HERE TOMORROW

Ernst Gideon Malherbe, president of the University of Natal, South Africa, will speak on "Why Apartheid in South Africa" at a dinner meeting of the English-Speaking Union of St. Louis at 7 p.m. tomorrow at the Bogue Golf Club, 9966 Clayton road, Ladue.

Malherbe, author of several books and papers on the educational history of South Africa, founded and was director for 10 years of the National Bureau of Educational and Social Research in the Union of South Africa government offices at Pretoria.

In World War II, he organized and directed the Army Education Services for the South African forces in South Africa, East Africa, Egypt and Italy.

4000 TO MARCH SATURDAY IN EASTER SEAL PARADE

More than 4000 persons will participate in the annual parade in connection with the 1956 Easter Seal appeal of the St. Louis Society for Crippled Children Saturday. The parade will start at noon at Twelfth boulevard and Washington avenue. The drive to raise $200,000 began March 10.

Gov. Joe Foss of South Dakota, national Easter Seal chairman, will arrive at 10 a.m. Saturday at Lambert-St. Louis Field, and will ride in the lead automobile in the parade with the local chairman, Charles E. Claggett. Participating in the procession will be service men and members of clubs, organizations, school and Scout groups.

There also will be horsemen, horse-drawn vehicles and about 30 floats.

The parade, on national Crippled Children's day, will proceed east in Washington to Sixth street, south to Olive street, west to Twelfth, south to Chestnut street and west to Fifteenth street. Outstanding floats will be awarded trophies after being selected at the reviewing stand at Soldiers' Memorial.

INDUSTRIAL BUS LINE CITED OVER EAST SIDE SERVICE

Industrial Bus Line Inc., a Caseyville (Ill.) subsidiary of East St. Louis City Lines, was cited yesterday by the Illinois Commerce Commission for not giving service over a route connecting the Edgemont area with downtown East St. Louis.

The commission, on its own motion, asked Industrial Bus Lines to show cause why Edgemont-East St. Louis service was not provided.

The case, after Caseyville Bus Lines Inc., applied for permission to give service over the route and East St. Louis City Lines objected on the ground that Industrial already was certified to service the route.

FCC HEAD DENIES SAYING INDUSTRY RUNS HIS AGENCY

'Astounded' at Congressman Quoting Him That Networks Could Fire His Men.

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—Federal Communications Commission Chairman George C. McConaughay denied yesterday he ever suggested that radio and television networks could hire and fire FCC personnel.

The chairman said he was "astounded" that Chairman Joe L. Evins (Dem., Tennessee, of a House Small Business subcommittee had quoted him publicly to that effect.

In a letter to Evins, McConaughay said he didn't recall discussing the subject with him.

Conferred Recently.

Evins had a conference with McConaughay and two aids recently and afterward released a statement saying McConaughay told him "the networks have the power to hire and fire those (on the FCC staff) who do not vote or speak in the networks' interest."

McConaughay wrote Evins:

"In order to set the record straight, I have searched my recollection and consulted with the two members of my staff who were present.

"My staff's recollection and mine are quite clear that you never discussed or mentioned any matter relating to the networks' alleged control of FCC staff, nor did I."

McConaughay's letter was inserted in the record of a hearing being conducted by Evins into alleged influence by the networks over FCC.

Evins then commented that perhaps McConaughay hadn't used the word "networks" but that he might have said "interests."

He said McConaughay's memory was faulty on some of the things that were said.

Disputes Other Statements.

The FCC chairman also took issue with two other statements Evins had attributed to him and his staff:

1. That McConaughay described himself as a "weak" chairman. McConaughay replied that what he did say was that he is possibly "the weakest chairman of any regulatory agencies with respect to my powers over personnel and the establishment of policy."

2. That Robert L'Heureux,

McConaughay's assistant, told him if the names of FCC staff members "were known in instances where they had taken positions unfavorable to the networks, the networks would see to it that such staff personnel were fired."

McConaughay asserted L'Heureux said that staff members were reluctant to release their opinions because they might get newspaper publicity and that this publicity "might tend to place pressures upon personnel, either through recourse to members of Congress or otherwise."

LIBRARY MORE ESSENTIAL THAN EVER, EDUCATOR SAYS

LOS ANGELES, March 22 (AP)—Colleges can get along without buildings of their own as long as they have teachers and books, says Frederick B. Adams Jr., director of New York City's Pierpont Morgan Library. He told 220 guests and friends of the Associated Colleges at Claremont yesterday that television will not make libraries and books obsolete.

"The library will be more essential than ever," he said. "It will always be necessary to study the record. This is really the essence of higher education."

ELECTION CHANGE PLANS ATTACKED ON TWO FRONTS

Proposals Said to Violate Constitution and Tradition on Picking President.

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 22—Proposals to change the present electoral college system of selecting Presidents are under attack as violative of Constitutional principles and the American tradition that a candidate who gets a majority wins, no matter how small the margin is.

These points were raised as the Senate continued debate on proposed amendments to the Constitution which would abolish the electoral college system and substitute a system of awarding a state's electoral votes on a proportional basis.

Senator John F. Kennedy (Dem.), Massachusetts, a leader in the fight to preserve the present system, told the Senate yesterday that the proposed constitutional amendments would violate the constitutional principle that each state "acts as a unit in its relations with the central government."

A "Revolutionary Change."

He said that an amendment sponsored by Senator Price Daniel (Dem.), Texas, would abolish state lines insofar as they figure in the selection of Presidents. He described this as a "revolutionary change" in the American federal system. Moreover, he said, it would weaken the effectiveness of the voting in such big two-party states as Massachusetts and New York.

The Daniel amendment, which has 53 co-sponsors in the Senate, would do away with the electoral system under which the winner in any state gets all of that state's electoral votes.

The Daniel amendment would retain the present method of determining each state's electoral vote—equivalent to two Senators and the number of Representatives—but would give the states two alternatives in determining how the electoral vote should be apportioned among candidates.

Plans Described.

Under the alternative plans, a state could elect to divide its electoral vote among candidates in direct proportion to the results of the popular vote.

Or, a state could adopt a modified unit rule system now used for electing Senators and Representatives under which two electoral votes would go to the candidate with the biggest state-wide vote and the other electoral votes would be awarded to candidates winning in the individual congressional districts, without regard to their state-wide vote.

Kennedy's Republican colleague from Massachusetts, Senator Leverett Saltonstall, raised the question of the proposed amendment going directly against the traditional American principle of majority rule. He also contended that alternative one in the amendment would render a pivotal state such as Massachusetts practically impotent in influencing the outcome of a presidential election. Massachusetts has 16 electoral votes and when they go to a single candidate as at present they carry considerable weight. The vote is always reasonably close in the state, Saltonstall said, and if the electoral votes were divided according to popular vote, the state would play a minor part in the selection of any presidential candidate.

Senator Russell Long (Dem.), Louisiana, joined opponents of the Daniel amendment. He said that he still believed that alternative one would help build a two-party system in states that are now dominated entirely by a single party because the minority party, no matter how weak, would be able to have its vote reflected, even if in a small way, in the final results.

Long said that what he objected to was the compromise which brought alternative two into the proposed amendment. Congressional redistricting, he said, has not kept pace with the shift of rural dwellers to the cities and, hence, there is under-representation in Congress for the populous districts and over-representation for the rural areas.

Long said that this disparity in representation which affects the complexion of Congress would be extended to the selection of the President under alternative two.

Lehman's Contention.

Senator Herbert H. Lehman (Dem.), New York, describing the Daniel amendment as "political hash," said that he favored the election of the President by direct popular vote. He described such an election as the only democratic and logical process and predicted that the country would come around to it "in good time."

Senator William Langer (Rep.), North Dakota, is sponsor of an amendment, still to be debated, which would abolish the electoral system entirely and provide for selection of presidential nominees in a national primary and the election of the President by direct popular vote. It is Langer's contention that nominees now are selected in "smoke-filled rooms."

Meanwhile, Americans for Democratic Action, a liberal political organization, charged in a statement that the Daniel amendment was "a concerted effort to curb the political influence of liberal-labor forces in the presidential nomination and election process."

"The intent of those who favor the Daniel amendment," the statement said, "is clearly to limit the influence of the independent liberal voter in states where both parties vigorously contest the elections."

TITO AID PREDICTS CLOSER YUGOSLAV TIES WITH RUSSIA

BELGRADE, March 22 (AP)—Moshe Pijade, one of President Tito's closest advisers, predicts closer cooperation between Russia and Yugoslavia.

Pijade, president of the Yugoslav Parliament, described the congress in Moscow—at which Joseph Stalin was denounced as the greatest thing that has happened in Russia since the Bolshevik revolution.

He scoffed at the idea that the explosion of the Stalin myth is a tactical maneuver of the new Communist party leadership headed by Nikita Khrushchev.

The break is so sharp and significant," he declared, "that it is difficult to doubt that corresponding consistent activity will follow these new ideas and principles."

The relations of Yugoslavia with the Soviet Union will continue to develop in the direction of strengthening friendly co-operation.

Yugoslavia and the U.S.S.R. signed a declaration last summer, during the Bulganin-Khrushchev visit here, acknowledging the right of each country to follow its own paths to Socialism.

PROFESSOR UNIT
URGES CENSURE OF 5 COLLEGES

Action Due at St. Louis Meeting on Charges of Violation of Academic Freedom.

By BENJAMIN FINE
The New York Times News Service
(Copyright 1956, by The New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK, March 22—A special committee of the American Association of University Professors called yesterday for the censure of five colleges and universities for what it said were violations of academic freedom and tenure.

This is the largest number of institutions to be brought up for censure by the association at any one time. The last institution to be placed on the "blacklist" was Evansville College of Evansville, Ind., in 1950.

Recommended for censure are the University of California, Ohio State University, Rutgers University, Temple University and Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia.

Refusal to Testify.

Each of the schools has dismissed faculty members either for pleading the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution when called before congressional investigating committees or for refusal to co-operate with the committees. The Fifth Amendment protects an individual from testifying against himself. None of the individuals involved in the report was identified by name.

Action on those listed for censure will take place at the association's annual meeting in St. Louis April 6-7.

Five colleges are still under investigation.

The committee, in a 48-page report, said that a professor should be judged by his fitness in the classroom, not by extra-legal tests. It held that use of the Fifth Amendment was not enough, by itself, to justify dismissal.

The committee further suggested that membership in the Communist party was not sufficient ground for dismissal. Such membership, it said, had to result in poor or biased teaching to justify ousting a faculty member.

Trial by Peers Urged.

The committee also held that a professor should be tried by his peers, not by a non-academic body.

The association consists of 38,000 members. It is one of the most influential groups in the field of higher education.

For some time the association has been concerned with the ouster of faculty members who appeared at congressional hearings. The special committee was appointed last fall. It was given the task of studying the problem and preparing a statement of guiding principles for the association's members.

The committee is headed by Prof. Bentley Glass of the Johns Hopkins University. Other members include Dr. Ralph F. Fuchs, general secretary of the association; Dr. Robert K. Carr, Dartmouth College; Dr. Douglas B. Maggs, Duke University; Dr. Glenn R. Morrow, University of Pennsylvania; Dr. Talcott Parsons, Harvard University; Dr. Russell N. Sullivan, University of Illinois, and Dr. George C. Wheeler, University of North Dakota.

Some Schools Comended.

By Associated Press
The committee proposed commendation for administrations of the following schools for supporting faculty members when they were under accusation:

University of Chicago, Cornell University, Harvard University, Johns Hopkins University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Sarah Lawrence College.

Committee members emphasized that we accept unquestioningly the application of colleges and universities of needed safeguards... for military security and that "the academic community has a duty to defend society and itself from subversion of the educational process."

The report commented upon the growing realization of the Communist strategy of infiltration" coupled with what it called "the readiness of political and economic groups and of individual politicians to play upon the natural fears of the American people and to suppress legitimate opinions and activities."

These factors, the committee said, have tended to drive "intelligent, fine-spirited young men and women" away from the teaching profession in the face of mounting enrollments.

Other Schools Criticized.

Aside from administrations singled out for censure or commendation, the committee commented critically on the handling of cases at several other schools.

Institutions in this group are:

University of Colorado, Kansas State Teachers College, Emporia, University of Kansas City (Mo.), University of Michigan, New York City Municipal College, Oregon State College, Reed College, San Diego (Calif.) State College, University of Washington and Wayne University.

Still incomplete are reports on New York University, University of Oklahoma and University of Vermont.

At Berkeley, Calif., President

Robert Gordon-Spruol of the University of California said the censure recommendation "was obviously drafted some time ago" and said it was doubtful the committee would reach the same conclusion today.

Spruol said the recommendation "is based on events and alleged situations of the past rather than the present. Particular point is made of the fact that the Regents of the University of California are demanding court adjudication of back pay for faculty members who were dismissed and reinstated.

Settlement of the back pay dispute involving faculty members who successfully challenged special oath, was announced last Friday.

Special to the Post-Dispatch
WASHINGTON, March 22—

A House appropriations subcommittee was asked today to increase budget-recommended appropriations for bank stabilization on the Missouri river from Kansas City to St. Louis to $5,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

This request and another for an appropriation of $1,000,000 for a start on construction of agricultural levees between Kansas City and Brunswick, Mo., were submitted by the Missouri-Arkansas Basins Flood Control and Conservation Association.

The requests were embodied in statements filed with the 17-member panel despite continued controversy over some details. As the bill now stands, federal and state highway expenditures would be increased by more than $28,500,000 in the 13-year period starting July 1.

A separate measure calling for higher taxes on gasoline and other products associated with highway use is expected to be combined with the authorization bill by the full committee.

Color Scheme for Drivers.

WINNIPEG, March 22 (AP)—Manitoba's traffic safety division is thinking of branding bad drivers with different color license plates. Drivers now get demerits for careless driving and after six bad marks they must attend a driving clinic.

Virginia Has No Integration
And Plans None; Doctrine
Of Interposition Set ForthInitial Position of Token Compliance Changes Quietly to One Approaching Intransigence — Criticism of Supreme Court Toned Down.

The New York Times survey of racial desegregation in the public schools now turns to the five states actively resisting the United States Supreme Court's decisions—Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi. This is the eighth report in the series.

By CLARENCE DEAN

A Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

VIRGINIA has set its official face against integration. It has done so within the terms of its tradition; without boisterous talk or stirring up racial enmity, but it has done so effectively that an initial position of token compliance has changed to one approaching intransigence.

There has been no integration in Virginia, and the state has no immediate plans for any.

Virginia contains one of the five areas under direct mandate from the United States Supreme Court to end segregation.

The state has an historic attachment to the principle of constitutional government; and race relations in Virginia for years have been harmonious.

Despite an appearance of unwilling resistance, some well-informed Virginians believe that many communities would accept a small amount of integration without difficulty.

To an outsider, the paradoxes are as startling as the incongruities in the life of the people. The paradoxes grow less, however, if they are studied in the light of three factors: the traditions of Virginia, its political organization and the temper of the people.

State's Tradition.

The Virginia tradition, stronger than that in many states, emphasizes scholarship and gentility, statesmanship and a respect for the orderly processes of government. Virginia never has forgotten that it is the cradle of Jeffersonian democracy, the capital of the Confederacy and the birthplace of eight Presidents, from Washington to Wilson.

Politically, Virginia is tightly knit in the Democratic organization headed by Senator Harry F. Byrd, who has counseled the South to adopt "massive resistance" to integration.

The white popular vote in Virginia, compared with the potential, for years has been one of the smallest in the South. Opposition to the dominant party has been weak, and political direction has remained in the hands of a relatively few men. The organization has enjoyed a reputation for honesty and conservatism.

In temper, the state is extremely homogeneous. The white people are preponderantly of English-Scotch-Irish ancestry and preponderantly native-born. Their independence and resentment of "outside interference" resembles that of their cousins in New England. Indeed, although the accents differ, the idiom is the same.

Variations in this basic temperament, however, are brought about by variations in local economic and social conditions.

Involved in Decision.

All this had a part in the developments that followed the Supreme Court's ruling in May 1954. Virginia was involved because Prince Edward county in its "Southside" section had provided one of the five cases before the court.

Four hundred Negro youngsters had gone on strike in April 1951, demanding a new high school equal to the white school. Integration later became the issue.

There was no immediate suggestion of defying the court's decision at the Capitol in Richmond. Gov. Thomas B. Stanley, a mild-mannered, prosperous furniture merchant from Henry county, near the Southside, made a temperate statement.

Rallying Cry.

He said he contemplated nothing "precipitate," but would call together representatives of state and local governments "to work toward a plan which will be acceptable to our citizens and in keeping with the edict of the court."

Among the white people there was not—and still is not—any substantial support for integration, but such influential groups as the Virginia Council of Churches, the Presbyterian Synod of Virginia and the Virginia Baptist General Association adopted resolutions calling on their members to abide by the court's ruling. The Roman Catholic Church announced it would make some integration in parochial schools in the next school year. Sixty Negro pupils later were admitted to 14 schools.

But the 24 Southside counties, where Negro school enrollment runs from 50 to as much as 80 per cent of the total, were outraged.

They declared "unalterable opposition" then began to talk of closing the public schools and setting up private schools for the white children.

Month-to-Month Funds.

Some of the counties later implemented this by allocating funds for the school year to follow on a month-to-month basis. Prince Edward County set about raising $212,000 for the employment of white teachers by a private corporation; there was no provision for employing teachers for Negro schools.

It began to look as if the public school system in some parts of Virginia might be threatened.

So the Governor, on Aug. 26, 1954, appointed a 32-member legislative commission.

There was no real expectation that this body would develop

Army Calls Order to Air Force to Install
Talos Instead of Nike a Wasteful
Duplication, Invasion of Its Field.

By BRIG. GEN. THOMAS R. PHILLIPS, U.S.A. (Ret.)
Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 22.

SECRETARY OF THE ARMY Wilber M. Brucker and Army Chief of Staff Maxwell D. Taylor on Tuesday made their expected protest to Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson over the announcement by the Defense Department that the Air Force would install Navy Talos missiles in Missouri, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

In a three-hour session Brucker and Taylor are reported to have described the installation of Talos missiles by the Air Force as a wasteful duplication of the Army's Nike and as an invasion of a field in which the Army has long been assigned primary functions.

The Army claims it not only was assigned ground-to-air aerial defense as a primary function in the Key West agreement in 1948, but that in the Army and Air Force authorizations passed by Congress in 1949 and in the Army authorization of 1950, the Army's mission in this field was extended specifically to surface-to-air missiles of all types used for air defense on land.

The Army position is that it agreed to Air Force development of the pilotless interceptor Bomarc on the grounds it was ultimately to be a replacement for piloted interceptors.

The Army does not agree, however, that the Navy's Talos is in the same category. Talos is also a pilotless interceptor but its range, expected to be more than 100 miles, is about the same as the Army's new Nike-B. Consequently, the Army sees the use of Talos by the Air Force as an effort to freeze the Army out of its primary function in air defense as well as a wasteful duplication of the Nike-B.

The move was initiated by William Old of Chesterfield County, an unassuming, 58-year-old lawyer with a fondness for Confederate history. He recently was named a circuit judge. On the day after the Supreme Court decision in 1954, Old started writing a pamphlet on interposition. He printed 1000 copies at his own expense.

One of them came to the attention of James Jackson Kilpatrick, 35-year-old editor of The Richmond News Leader. For five days, as the special legislative session opened, "interposition" dominated the editorial page of The News Leader. When the heraldry had died away even Kilpatrick was surprised at the result.

Rallying Cry. Interposition had become a rallying cry, not only in Virginia, but throughout the South. It was later to be called by Senator Byrd "a perfectly legal means of appeal from the Supreme Court's order."

It was characteristic, however, that in Virginia, the proposed versions of an interposition resolution that described the court's decision as "null and void" were rejected. The version finally adopted by an overwhelming vote in the Virginia General Assembly referred to the decision as an "illegal encroachment."

As the regular session of the Legislature approached its close, the Speaker of the House, E. Blackburn Moore, introduced a resolution calling for continued

THE HASHIMITE royal family, to which the kings of Iraq and Jordan belong, has perhaps the longest pedigree of any dynasty in the world. They trace their descent from the Prophet Mohammed, founder of the Moslem religion in the seventh century A.D.

My service with this family began in 1926, when I first took an appointment under King Feisal I of Iraq, the companion of T. E. Lawrence in the First World War.

In 1930, I transferred to Trans-Jordan, which was then a boy at the beginning of the century, he had lived and fought with the Bedouins of the desert. Immediately before the First World War he had been a member of parliament on Constantinople, the capital of the then Turkish empire.

Both were men of outstanding personality, true gentlemen, gifted with charming and courteous manners and yet at the same time great democrats. Always genial and considerate to their subordinates, they were men for whom it was always a pleasure and an honor to work.

His First Work in Jordan.

From my arrival in Jordan in 1930 until April, 1939, I was employed in control of the desert area of Jordan, an area nearly as large as England. It consists of rolling desert country, flint-strewn hills divided by narrow, twisting valleys covered with low desert scrub and bushes. There are no trees in the desert, but in spring the whole country is carpeted with short grass and a profusion of spring flowers.

The Emir Abdullah had been brought up in the deserts outside Mecca, and he loved, when his duties allowed, to leave his palace in Amman and spend one or two nights in the desert.

A small camp of tents was pitched, and the Emir would sit in an open tent, gazing out over the vast, treeless, rolling expanse that merged into range upon range of pale blue hills as far as the eye could see.

Camp fires would be lit as the evening drew in, Negro slaves would bring coffee, and the Emir, sitting on a Persian carpet on the ground and leaning his elbow on a camel saddle, would converse far into the night.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

From McDonnell Aircraft

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In answer to your editorial of March 10, "Everybody Was Careless," commenting on the recent House investigation of the F3H-1N Demon program, I should like to make the following points.

Representative Clare E. Hoffman of Michigan, now serving his twenty-first year in Congress, the senior Republican member of the military operations subcommittee, and chairman of the parent Committee on Government Operations during the previous Eighty-third Congress, said:

"A careful study of the (subcommittee's) report does not justify all of the criticism carried in it, nor does that criticism appear to be justified by the testimony. . . ."

"Adopting Monday morning quarterbacking methods, we are criticizing decisions made in a time of stress and emergency — criticism which fails to properly evaluate the conditions which then existed."

The subcommittee makes the point that McDonnell's desire to get engines to accommodate the airframes on its production lines led it to propose that "down-graded" Westinghouse engines be installed in airframes then under contract, despite awareness that the aircraft-engine combination would be "disappointingly underpowered."

This is not true. McDonnell proposed the use of these downgraded engines only to get the airplanes usefully in the air for essential flight test development so that the engines and the airframes would have the best chance of being perfected, and our recommendation was that each of these engines must be eventually replaced by higher-powered engines.

The wisdom of this policy is now proved by the fact that much-needed fleet-ready F3H-2N aircraft have already been delivered to the Navy. We certainly would not be delivering these combat-ready aircraft to our fleet units today if the airplane had not been flight-tested from 1278 flights in the early Demons with the so-called "down-graded" J-40 engines.

Although these aircraft were underpowered from a combat performance standpoint, their many test flights enabled essential development of the airplane. You cannot develop your engine without getting it into the air.

The subcommittee report on alleged serious negligence and disregard for safety factors alleges that McDonnell was negligent in preventing foreign objects from passing through the jet engines.

The truth is that this was a problem plaguing jet aircraft manufacturers all over the world. We made a nation-wide survey to determine how other manufacturers were trying to solve this problem. We found that one of the most outstanding manufacturers had at one time found it necessary to change 86 engines in order to deliver 80 aircraft.

Our company took quick, thorough measures of many kinds, including even thoroughly sweeping our entire flight ramp area of 640,000 square feet every day.

Representative Hoffman's statement on the findings of the subcommittee made certain telling points.

"Due to the Korean War," he said, "the Navy was faced with the necessity of making courageous and pioneer judgments to assure the continuity of our air superiority and adequate national defense. Historically, McDonnell and Westinghouse had proved their capabilities in designing war planes and producing advanced jet engines. With this in mind the Bureau of Aeronautics personnel chose the Demon."

"During the course of the hearings we had expert testimony from the senior Navy test pilot on this aircraft, Comdr. Nicholas J. Smith. It was his opinion that the F3H-1N was, and is, a fine airplane."

"He was asked his opinion of the validity of the decision by the Navy Department to continue, in the face of development difficulties, to try to secure from the Westinghouse Co. the engine required for the airplane. Even with the difficulties he encountered he agreed the program should have been continued."

Let's set the record straight: The McDonnell Aircraft Corp. was not careless! J. S. McDONNELL.

President, McDonnell Aircraft Corp.

A Park to Be Saved

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I want to protest against the sale of Tilles Park by the City of St. Louis. It is a wonderful park for picnics. I have had many enjoyable hours at Tilles Park with my children. If the city would sell Tilles Park it would be 10 years before the city could replace it. The city is slow on all improvements but quick in selling. Let's save Tilles Park!

C. GORMAN.

An Indian View of Dulles

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
John Foster Dulles's accomplishments on his latest "mission" seem to bear out the assertion of the Indian correspondent of the Manchester Guardian. This citizen of the Far East said that Russia didn't need Mr. Dulles working for her.

He concluded his article by saying "it is better to have a wise enemy than a foolish friend" and suggested that this truth might account for the difference in the receptions accorded Mr. Khrushchev and Mr. Dulles.

JOHN M. FISHELL.

A Job for Us All

President Eisenhower has never spoken truer words than in his counsel of moderation in the handling of the race issue. As he told the Wednesday press conference, the Supreme Court's desegregation decision and the subsequent legal developments are not matters that should "separate Americans." They hold out a goal toward which, if people of goodwill work together, "progress can be made."

As true as these words are, they are also urgently needed. One of the requirements in this worsening situation has been a statement of high purpose and reassurance with the influence and prestige of the White House. Mr. Eisenhower's answers to questions by correspondents show his own fair attitude. Were he to make these comments the basis of an extended presidential utterance the result could be of great benefit to the country.

You Can't Please Everybody

A day after receiving a kind word from the American Ambassador, France has begun massing warships along the Algerian coast. The French also are using helicopters built in the United States to stop Arab gunrunning.

These activities will be interpreted in two ways. France is going ahead with her dual policy of suppressing Arab nationalist revolt and of offering enlarged self-government to Algeria. As for the United States, this country seems to be involved in the Algerian situation, or that is the way the French and Arabs will see it.

C. Douglas Dillon, American Ambassador to France, had already said that the United States would stand "solidly behind France in the search for a liberal and equitable solution of the problems in Algeria." This is one of those neat diplomatic statements; it puts us solidly behind France, and solidly behind an "equitable solution" for the Arabs.

That the situation has grown worse is not open to question. The so-called doctrine of "interposition," which has been given official status in several leading Southern states, including Virginia, is nothing less than the old pre-Civil War doctrine of nullification in rather better legal dress.

But serious as is interposition's flouting of the unanimous desegregation decision—a decision in which Justices from Alabama, Texas and Kentucky participated—the manifesto of the Southern members of Congress is far worse. For in signing that statement, 19 Southern Senators and 77 members of the House put themselves in defiance of the law of the land.

In the Senate only Majority Leader Johnson of Texas and Senators Gore and Kefauver of Tennessee among the Southerners did not sign. In the House the only Southerner who withheld his name was Speaker Rayburn. Proving that the issue was not a party affair, the two Republican House members from Virginia put their names down with those of the Democrats.

Mississippi had its Till murder trial which countless citizens regard as a grave miscarriage of justice. Now in Alabama there is a trial of the men and women who have refused to patronize a bus line which demanded that a Negro woman give up her seat to a white patron. An attempt actually is being made under an old, almost never used state statute to convict people for changing their transportation habits.

Meantime there are political exploiters who are not above using this dangerous and explosive situation for partisan gain. Many Republicans are willing if not eager to see it divide the Democratic party. Some Democrats take one side to profit themselves in the Northern cities and others espouse the opposite side as political Southerners.

Former Gov. Stevenson put this all with admirable clarity in his statement issued last month in Portland, Ore. He said:

True integration requires more than the mere presence of children of two races in the same classroom; it requires a change in the hearts and minds of men. No child can be educated in a hostile atmosphere.

In the five or six states where public opinion does not yet sustain the Supreme Court's decision, we are faced with one of the ultimate tests of democracy and the federal system. There we are attempting to stand firmly by Britain and France, as allies, without necessarily seeming to support them to the hilt as colonial powers. It is an old problem complicated by the West's need for peace in the Mediterranean.

Such a problem is best faced by quiet attempts at mediation and conciliation, and an aversion to public statements which try to please everybody.

Secretary Weeks's Sound Advice

Secretary of Commerce Weeks put himself, in our opinion, on the wrong side on the Dixon-Yates contract and the Hell's Canyon power development in his St. Louis address. But he did offer some very sound advice elsewhere in his speech at the annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday night at Hotel Jefferson.

We refer in particular to his blunt warning to business that as it keeps on increasing prices for its products it contributes to serious inflation danger. The Eisenhower Cabinet member also criticized the increasing appeal through advertising in many forms to convince consumers that they do not need to pay anything down to get almost anything they want.

The Commerce Secretary had similar warnings on wages and consumer credit for organized labor and working people, but his advice was pitched primarily to the business man, his prices and his appeals. When this caution is sounded to business men by a business somebody ought to be seeing what needs to be done about it.

Ways to Deal With a Hobble

The reservation under which a $3,000,000

start on the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial is authorized in the House bill is regrettable but not necessarily insurmountable. This reservation apparently requires that all the money be obligated in binding contracts by June 30, the end of the current fiscal year. The National Park Service, which has jurisdiction over the site on the riverfront, says plans for track relocation and grading—which is what the $3,000,000 would be spent for—could scarcely be ready by that date.

An ideal solution would be to persuade the House to reconsider, as it can still do. Another suggestion is to move the appropriation to the Interior Department appropriation bill for fiscal 1957-58, which would allow a longer period in which to let contracts.

Short of eliminating the hobble, Representative Curtis of St. Louis suggests that it may be reconciled with practicality through the device of a letter of intent from the National Park Service to the city. The General Accounting Office says it sometimes accepts this alternative if convinced the avowal is sincere.

If worse comes to worst and the restriction can neither be eliminated nor circumvented, the effort should certainly be made to meet its terms. In fact, the best course probably would be to push the plans ahead now as though they had to be ready for contract awards June 30. If enough red tape is cut and enough procedures are streamlined, perhaps it can be done. Care must be taken to insure that the tracks are relocated out of sight and the tract is properly graded and restored. Provided that is done, a spur to prompt action may be more help than hindrance.

Demands have been made that fields in congested areas be closed and that all flying from those fields cease.

The arguments for such action are many. Modern jet aircraft could operate from strips in remote areas with plenty of room for expansion and with far greater safety to surrounding communities. The major problem of jet noise would not be acute.

Airfields of all types—military and commercial—would be of the enemy's first targets in case of war. Hence, the location of these airfields far from large cities would provide a measure of protection for these cities in the event of nuclear war. National safety against nuclear attack is greatly influenced by the numbers and the dispersion of our airfields. The more the nation has and the more scattered they are, the more secure the "home base" is.

Number and dispersion, then, rather than remoteness of airfields from urban areas, are a more accurate measure of the security of cities against nuclear bombardment.

Gen. Thomas D. White, Vice Chief of Staff of the Air Force, said recently that in 1950 there was an Air Force of forty-seven wings and 122 bases in this country. In five years, he added, the wings have increased by 160 per cent, but the bases have increased by only 40 per cent.

More and better airfields, then, is the answer rather than the closing of existing ones. But this costs money. If the American taxpayer wants to have his cake and eat it, too, some existing fields in congested areas might be closed but only if they were replaced on a ratio of about 2 to 1. The taxpayer and only the taxpayer could pay for this.

A community which realizes that its schools are what the teachers make them, surely will grant them these benefits.

Social Security in the Schools

Teachers and other employees of the Board of Education have voted 3,546 to 921 for coverage under the federal social security system. That individuals whose income is none too high should avail themselves of this was to be expected. They have a few more worries than many of us about the hazards of advancing years.

The decision, however, means that the Board of Education will have to make payments to the Government like any other employer. This necessity is an important reason for seeking an advance of the school tax rate from $1.15 to $1.30 in April's special election.

A community which realizes that its schools are what the teachers make them, surely will grant them these benefits.

St. Louis to the Gulf

Senate approval of a seaway canal project at

New Orleans is good news for St. Louis as well as for its sister city at the mouth of the Mississippi. The canal and inner tidewater harbor will shorten the waterway from New Orleans to the open Gulf by 45 miles, and make it safer and more reliable St. Louis, which does a considerable business outgoing and incoming through the port of New Orleans via the Mississippi River, will share in the benefits.

The measure already having been voted upon in the House, the Senate action completes the authorization. The next step in the legislative process is the appropriation of funds with which to start this long-needed engineering work.

Two Big Problems for Aviation

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Hanson W. Baldwin in The New York Times

Military analyst says demand to close down airports close to cities is unrealistic; might change their use but nation needs more fields, not fewer; editorial speaking for owners of private, business planes notes danger in high flying speeds around airports.

From AOPA Pilot, Aircraft Owners & Pilots Assn.

The current controversy about closing down Mitchel Air Force Base in congested Nassau county is merely a part of a nation-wide problem of airports.

The Mitchel base, like many of the older military and commercial airfields of the nation, used to be situated in a relatively uninhabited area.

Today, most of these older fields, like Mitchel, have been engulfed and surrounded by urban areas, extending ever outward from the big cities. Numerous crashes, which have caused civilian deaths or property damage in nearby communities, have aroused much public concern.

Demands have been made that fields in congested areas be closed and that all flying from those fields cease.

The arguments for such action are many. Modern jet aircraft could operate from strips in remote areas with plenty of room for expansion and with far greater safety to surrounding communities. The major problem of jet noise would not be acute.

Airfields of all types—military and commercial—would be of the enemy's first targets in case of war. Hence, the location of these airfields far from large cities would provide a measure of protection for these cities in the event of nuclear war.

Obviously, the choice must be made between two possible solutions: wipe out V.F.R. flying as we know it today (which is 95 per cent of all flying in the U.S.), or impose drastic speed limits on "modern" aircraft, in much the same manner as speed limits are applied to all vehicles and vessels on the earth's surface.

We think "see and be seen" is just as valid today as it was 10 years ago. It does mean, however, that the DC-7 must be required by law to slow down to 180 m.p.h. in terminal areas so as not to unnecessarily endanger the lives of all others who want to use the same air space.

President Eisenhower will run again, a decision we think, that surprised almost no one after he had gone past New Year's day without eliminating himself as a candidate.

After joining in the widespread and sincere rejoicing that the President feels so well recovered from his heart condition, we test our not unbiased political reactions by self-interview:

Q. Will Ike carry Cass County again, as he did in '52?
A. No.

Q. Will he carry Missouri again?
A. No.

Q. Will he be re-elected?
A. Gallup will re-elect him, but whether the voters do will depend on how the average citizen—not Wall Street—feels about conditions, come November.

Q. What about Nixon?
A. Seldom has there been such a

Bittersweet Romance

HONEY FROM A DARK HIVE, by Bernice Kavinko. (Rinehart, 271 pgs., $3.75.)

Those readers who relish naturalism—the portrayal of life as recorded through the senses alone—will find in Bernice Kavinko a young novelist who is a connoisseur of physical sensation. Those who prefer subtle nuances, the quizzically raised eyebrow, the delicate implication in the movement of a hand—will find "Honey From a Dark Hive" too bitter for their taste.

This is the story of the thwarted love of Judy Harris, a young Jewish girl, and Pietro D'Angelio, an Italian boy, who had grown up with Judy in a small Pennsylvania mining town. We meet Judy as she is returning home from college to live with her parents in back of the small department store which they operate. When, during a chance encounter, she agrees to meet Pietro at a church bingo game, an emotional involvement begins which can end only in tragedy.

Both sets of parents bitterly oppose marriage between the two, forcing the lovers to have furtive meetings.

This plot, of course, is hackneyed, but Miss Kavinko saves her novel from banality by showing how one generation inflicts its disappointments upon the next, and by raising the love of Judy and Pietro to heroic proportions.

Although she is a master at creating characters, Miss Kavinko does not do so well with her backgrounds. The town of Weston, the coal mine which supports it and in which Pietro works, and the surrounding countryside seem like painted backdrops instead of three-dimensional places.

President Goes to Bat for Foreign Aid

ANOBSCLE to President Eisenhower's proposed four-billion-dollar-plus foreign economic and military aid program is a simple matter of psychology—the mood of composure among our people which is having its influence upon Congress.

That mood is exemplified in the "peace and prosperity" atmosphere which Republicans began to create some time ago to win the coming national election. But they didn't foresee, of course, that it might have a dampening effect on one of the President's major programs designed to protect our free world allies and thus safeguard our own security. Soviet Russia has contributed, too, with her change of front, beginning with the smiling visage at the Big Four Geneva conference last summer. Added to this was the shift of emphasis away from aggressive attitudes and now, in the last few days, the official renunciation of Joseph Stalin, who was for so long so ominous a figure and useful in keeping our people alert to the threat of Russia.

Hazards Lie Ahead.

How keenly aware the President is of the psychological hazards to an adequate foreign aid program he clearly disclosed by the large space he devoted in his message to Congress to Russia and her aims.

On the basis of her previous course, he warned that he still must "assume that Soviet expansionism has merely taken on a somewhat different guise and that its fundamental objective is still to disrupt and, in the end, to dominate the free nations."

As for the practical situation in Congress, the President not only finds himself without the support of his own Senate leader on some phases of the program, but also bereft of the support of some Democrats who previously followed him closely on foreign policy matters.

Some Don't Go Along.

Senator William F. Knowland of California, the Republican Senate leader, along with a number of Democrats as well as Republicans, does not go along on the President's proposal for a 10-year commitment on economic aid and also regards the $4,800,000,000 total as too high.

This attitude, and that of House leaders, forecast modification of the President's program. These legislators will insist that Congress keep control of the program and not give long-range discretion to the President.

Increasing resistance to "foreign spending," as it is commonly called by our people, was reflected in Senator Knowland's comment: "Our budget is not yet balanced. Our national debt is over $200,000,000. Our individual citizens and our free-enterprise system are carrying heavy tax burdens."

Sacrifices at Home.

For such arguments the President was prepared. He conceded in his message, which elicited the Knowland comment, that our foreign-aid program entails sacrifices and may mean that we will have to defer projects of our own here at home.

But he contended that the benefits we get in preservation of peace because our allies are kept economically strong and well-armed "are well worth the price."

The President took special pains to try to dispel prevalent complacency by an analysis of Russia's new tactics. He explained: "Aggression seems to have been put aside, at least temporarily, and the Communists are now making trade approaches to many nations of the free world."

"The Soviet maneuver, which is still developing, includes offers of bilateral trade arrangements which may involve provision of arms and capital goods as well as technical assistance."

"Had we any reason to believe that the Soviet leaders had abandoned their sinister objectives, and now shared our own high purpose of helping other nations to develop freedom and independence, we would welcome the new Soviet program, for it appears to have aspects of normal trade expansion and business competition."

"Its dangers for us and for other free nations, however, lie in the traditional Soviet objectives and in the entanglements to which acceptance of their offers may lead."

The Kremlin Arms.

The President pointed out also that Russia and her allies are, in fact, increasing their armed forces.

"In its new departures in foreign policy," he added, "we see that the Soviet Union continues in its ceaseless probing for opportunities to exploit political and economic weaknesses. We cannot view otherwise the arms traffic in areas where tensions are high and the peace is in danger. We cannot view otherwise the extension of credits and hand-in-hand with exploitation of ancient animosities and new hatreds in a world already overburdened with them."

Here he was pointing to the most dangerous area in the world today—the Middle East.

to revive—the device ingeniously secured a feeling of intimacy with the performer in the big hall—he asked those behind him to excuse his back. Then those in front of him to excuse his front. "I can't help it," he said in exasperation, "That's how I'm built." He inquired ingratiantly: "Would you like to hear the Chopin Polonaise in A Flat?" When the heavy applause subsided he said: "Good. Now, is there anyone here who can play it?" But later on, he did play it himself—that is, the "Reader's Digest version." He again sucked in the audience by asking seriously: "Do you like good music?" When a man shouted yes, Borgie crumpled up a sheet of music and threw it at him.

When his right hand ran off the keyboard trying to follow the score, he solved the dilemma by tearing a strip off the right-hand side of the music sheet. There have been thousands of imitations of Liberace, but Mr. Borgie's was one of sheer, inspired good-humored malice—"Of course we first asked Mr. Liberace for permission to do this impersonation. Though we haven't gotten a reply yet." He announced he would do Chopin's Minute Waltz, "if time permitted," then said he hated "Liebestraum" and launched into it, building up a mood of reverie which he punctuated by wondering aloud, "Why DID Jimmy Roosevelt ever sign that letter?" But the most hilarious event of the whole evening, to my mind, was his broad-comedy version of a Mozart opera with himself singing all the parts, or an approximation thereof. "The lady who fills the role of the soprano does more than that—she overflows with it. She's four and a half feet tall—lying down."

There have been other comedians at the piano, including Al Trahan, the frenzied Maurice Rocco, Chico Marx, and Liberace, but Mr. Borgie makes the instrument a sounding board for some of the freshest, slickest and wryest humor we know of. It's always there in a constant flow as it comes from the bubbling springs of Mr. Borgie's personality. Although it follows a certain pattern, and includes some of his old favorite specialties, including the hilarious phonetic punctuation and the dissertation on audience coughing with "Clair de Lune" in which he urges the good people to give out with their best, there is always a feeling of spontaneity about it. From Victor, you can always expect the unexpected.

The nimble wit and nimble fingers combine with a sure sense of showmanship and a rare feeling for mimicry. The civilized face and distinguished bearing dissolve into the sardonic cocking of an eyebrow, a wicked grin and glint, a sly grimace. One wisecrack comes tumbling after another, perhaps interspersed by Mr. Borgie's mumbling to himself. The sight gag and the sound gag are implemented with equal deftness. Before his center stage began

9 ST. LOUIS ARTISTS IN NEW EXHIBIT HERE

Gallery Displaying Recent Work by Washington U. Teachers.

By HOWARD DERRICKSON

An exhibition of new work by nine leading St. Louis artists, all Washington University School of Fine Arts faculty members, opened yesterday at Martin Schweig Gallery of Modern Art, 4657 Maryland avenue. The display will end April 14.

Rather than making fresh departures, most of these pictures develop and intensify original styles that already have won the exhibitors an imposing array of honors and have advanced St. Louis' prestige as a center of modern art in everything from murals to prints.

Fred Conway, for instance, winner of the New York Architectural League's 1956 Gold Medal for Murals, is represented by "Dancers," muralistic in its monumentality and carrying power of its rich and luminous color, but highly personal in its mysterious imagery.

Abstract and representational elements harmoniously mingle in Charles Quest's sportive "Sea Nymphs."

Fred Becker's virtuosity with color and spatial construction in "Bird Cage," part of a Missouri Show at City Art Museum, is carried several steps further in the now display's enormously complex "Aerial Jungle," an etching owned by the Library of Congress.

Unlike his co-exhibitors, Tamaso Milovich strikes out in a fresh direction. "His 'Sonata,'" a musical mood painting of a long low interior, is an expressionist oil, freshly and loosely brushed.

William Fett, by contrast, paints meticulously in two sur-realist canvases his own inventive, nervous, rushing forms, which assume writhing shapes like those of wind—tossed draperies.

Siegfried Reinhardt's original design and masterful draftsmanship dominate both his "Mystery," an ingeniously-textured oil with hidden faces at its center, and "Woman," a symbolic drawing in ink and charcoal. Werner Drewes' "Metamorphosis" is a disciplined abstract.

Violent contrast of sunshine and storm is provided by Edward Boccia's high-keyed "Lyric Accent" and Walter Barker's ominously dark "Black Painting," which face one another at the gallery's end. The light-hearted Boccia picture is in flower-like hues of joyous pinks, yellows and greens, with semi-abstract suggestions of four figures in animated conversation, all very lightly painted.

Thick gobs of paint are tossed about by Barker. Building up from flat outer edges of his canvas to contorted angry swirls of black and purple paint in dynamic conformations an inch thick at the center, the artist accentuates the effect of a tempest by lightning-like flashes of white. Here paint itself is the major actor.

Delbert Mann, who directed "Marty" on TV and then for his movie debut, won the best direction award.

"Marty" was produced by the team of Harold Hecht and screen star Burt Lancaster.

Lancaster told a reporter that the film cost only $343,000 to make but that a half million dollars was spent on an advertising campaign.

Hollywood thought the two partners were slightly daft when

ACQUITTAL DENIED TWO IN FRAUD TRIAL

Case Alleging Plot Against U.S.

The case of Joseph M. Ebeling Jr. and Charles G. Emerling, charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government of about $10,000 through false invoices for ordnance material, was expected to go to a jury today in the court of United States District Judge Rubey M. Hulen.

Arguments of counsel and the court's instructions to the jury began after a defense motion for acquittal was overruled by Judge Hulen. The defense attacked the jurisdiction of the Federal Government in bringing the conspiracy charge.

In the motion, defense attorneys contended that if Manchester Machine Co., of which Ebeling is manager, drew up false invoices as the Government charges, the falsification was made with Production Engineering and Manufacturing Co., of which Emerling is president, and not with an agency of the Government, as the statute requires.

The Government claims Production Engineering included the false invoices from Manchester Machine, which is in St. James, Mo., when it billed Army ordnance officials for work on motorized conversion kits.

Ebeling and Emerling both testified yesterday that they made no agreement to defraud the Government, but said they couldn't remember if certain parts, which they testified the Government received, were actually made by Manchester Machine.

Emerling testified he had nothing to do with making up purchase orders for parts and Ebeling testified he did not make any invoices for work that was not done.

Earlier yesterday, Wesley C. Thompson, former assistant manager of the machine company, said on the witness stand that Ebeling asked him to make out invoices for about $20,000 worth of work that was not done.

A defense witness, David Jones, former foreman for Production Engineering, identified inspectors' tickets which he said he initialed while foreman.

The tickets showed an inspection had been made of work done for Production Engineering by Manchester Machine, he said.

Emerling's trial on another charge, of defrauding the Government of about $12,000 on defense contracts, resulted in a mistrial in January.

Argentine Ex-President Home, BUENOS AIRES, March 22 (UPI)—Former President Eduardo Lonardi returned home from the United States last night, suffering from a case of influenza. He underwent surgery in the United States.

GENERAL AMERICAN TAX CASE RULED ON

Insurance Firm Upheld on One Point, Government on Another.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 22—The United States Tax Court has referred a $10,269 federal income tax claim against General American Life Insurance Co. of St. Louis to attorneys for the company and the Internal Revenue Service for settlement.

In an opinion by Judge Stephen E. Rice, the court upheld General American's contention that oil and gas royalties it received did not constitute rents. The court said the Revenue Service erred in determining that the royalties were taxable income.

Judge Rice held, however, by the insurance firm from mortgage debtors who prepared their loans constitute additional interest charges and were taxable income.

The judge directed the decision to be entered under rule 50, which provides that both parties will adjust the differences in writing out a settlement.

The Government alleged income tax deficiencies totaling $10,269 for the years 1949 through 1951, based on its contention that the royalties constituted rents and the mortgage penalty payments constituted interest, both of which are taxable.

During the years involved, General American received $120,358 in gas and oil royalties and $113,563 in penalty payments from mortgagors.

A Tax Court spokesman said a life insurance bill recently signed by President Eisenhower defines mortgage penalty payments and oil and gas royalties as interest and rents respectively, and therefore taxable. Previously, he said, there was no clear definition.

U.S. SPENDING RUNNING FAR ABOVE ESTIMATE

$2,700,000,000 Increase in First 8 Months of Year Threatens Budget Balance.

The New York Times News Service,
(Copyright 1956 by the New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, March 2—
Government spending in the first eight months of the current fiscal year ran $2,700,000,000 over what was planned when the budget for the year was first submitted in January, 1955.

Treasury figures covering operations through the end of February showed yesterday that spending had totalled $43,350,- 000,000. A month-by-month spending estimate submitted to the Senate Finance Committee last year after the budget was presented had put spending through February at only $40,- 000,000.

If spending keeps up at this rate, the current fiscal year may not show a balanced budget after all. The budget submitted in January this year, revising estimates for the current fiscal year had forecast a tiny surplus of $200,000.

Those estimates put spending for the whole fiscal year at $64,270,000,000, or an increase of about $1,900,000,000 over the original estimates submitted 14 months ago. Through February, spending had already eaten up that entire increase in the estimates, and more besides.

Likely To Exceed Estimate.
Thus spending for the whole fiscal year seems extremely likely to exceed the latest estimate of $64,270,000,000.

Receipts, of course, have also been running far ahead of the estimates in the original budget of 14 months ago. Through February they had totalled $36,- 120,000,000, compared to original estimates of $33,100,000,000. What is more, the heavy tax receipt months of March and June are still to come.

The latest estimates for the current fiscal year, in this January's budget, put receipts for the whole year at $64,500,000,000, compared to an original estimate of $60,000,000,000. Progress so far indicates that at least $74,500,000,000 will be collected.
But if no more than that comes in, the budget in all probability will not wind up balanced.

A better picture of receipts will be available when the official March figures are in. Many experts believe that even the latest $64,500,000,000 estimate was low, and that receipts will be far enough above that level to balance the budget.

Farm Spending.
By far the biggest increase in spending has been in the farm sector, where expenses are out of the government's control.

Part of the $1,900,000,000 increase in expenditures by the Community Credit Corp., over the original estimate has been caused by a financing "gimmick." The Treasury so far has not used a device for postponing about $700,000,000 of the cost of supporting farm prices until the next fiscal year.

Use of this device had been counted on in the original estimates.

The Treasury can still use it, and thus cut back spending this fiscal year by $700,000,000. Presumably it will do so if a threat to a balanced budget develops.
This would in all likelihood bring spending down to the point where receipts would cover outgo.

Sixty Great Lakes Bill.
WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)— President Eisenhower signed legislation yesterday to authorize deepening of the connecting channels in the Great Lakes west of Lake Erie at a cost of $110,000,000. This would provide a 27-foot minimum depth from Lake Superior to the Atlantic Ocean.

TINY METEORS TO BE STUDIED BY NEW RADAR EYE

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 22 (AP) — A powerful new radar eye soon will study invisible shooting stars or meteors—the buckshot from space—to learn where they come from and how they affect human beings.

Harvard University astronomers today told of plans for the radar study. They hope it can learn secrets of meteors 500 times fainter than those the human eye can see.

Millions of meteors from outer space, mostly tiny specks, bombard the earth every day. It is estimated 1000 tons of meteoritic dust falls to earth daily. The dust and electrical energy that come from them may be partial causes of torrential rains, of the Northern Lights, and an aid to sending ordinary radio broadcasts.

The new radar study is expected to produce more facts about the heights, speeds, orbits and origins of these faint meteors. Gerald S. Hawkins, Curtis L. Hemenway and Fred L. Whipple told the American Astronomical Society.

The radar system will be set up in southern Massachusetts by Harvard Observatory in conjunction with the Lincoln Laboratory of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

FOLSOM REJECTS
TWO CHANGES IN SOCIAL SECURITY

He Turns Down House
Proposals — Also Speaks Against Tax Rise.

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — The Eisenhower Administration turned thumbs down today on House-passed proposals to provide Social Security retirement benefits for women at age 62 and payments to the totally disabled starting at age 50.

Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Marion B. Folsom rejected also the accompanying increase in the Social Security tax from 2 to 2½ per cent immediately to help finance the broadened benefits.

He said this would mean a tax increase of $1,700,000,000 over the first full year.

"The Old-Age and Survivors Insurance (OASI) system is in excellent condition," Folsom said in testimony for the Senate Finance Committee.

In Approximate Balance

"For all practical purposes, the system is in approximate actuarial balance. It will thus be self-supporting, under present estimates, providing taxes are increased as scheduled and benefits are not increased without a corresponding increase in revenue."

Folsom urged extension of OASI coverage to make it as "nearly universal as practicable." He indorsed provisions in the House bill and in other pending legislation which would extend the coverage to self-employed attorneys, dentists, osteopaths, optometrists, veterinarians, the military services, federal employees and various other groups.

Republican Senators had expected Administration opposition. At the same time they have contended privately that the proposals have wide appeal in an election year.

Revisions Suggested.

Folsom suggested some revisions in the handling of Social Security funds, including an amendment which would permit consolidated wage reporting for Social Security and income tax purposes. He said the change would relieve employers of the annual job of filing 12,000,000 wage returns listing about 200,000,000 pay

Pointing out that Congress in 1954 made major changes in the scope of coverage and the benefits, Folsom said the thing to do now is to gain long-term experience, in the impact of those revisions.

"I would not initiate at this time in OASI further major taxes substantially and raise serious uncertainties for the future," Folsom said.

Folsom estimated that the proposal to lower the eligibility age for women from 65 to 62 would cost about $400,000,000 the first full year and more than a billion a year by 1970.

Summarizing his opposition, Folsom said:

"The proposal to lower the retirement age for women to 62 would tend to reduce job opportunities for many older workers at a time when our objective is to increase employment prospects for those who desire to work and need to work."

"The proposed change conflicts with the fact that more women are living longer and working longer than ever before."

A lowered Federal eligibility age, Folsom said, would no doubt be followed by a lower mandatory retirement age for women under many private plans, thus reducing job opportunities for older women who want to work.

Costs Not Justified.

Pointing out that the change would apply to housewives as well as working women, and also to widows, Folsom said: "There has been no clear demonstration that the over-all social need for this step would justify the heavy costs on all taxpayers."

Folsom gave this summation of his opposition to the disability payments plan:

"There is a great divergence of opinion on the difficulties of administering a cash disability program, our ability to control the costs, and the effects on vocational rehabilitation."

"On the other hand, we are making significant progress in helping disabled people through assistance payments to the needy, the rehabilitation program, and the disability freeze. We need more time to develop these programs fully and evaluate their results."

The social security bill got half way through Congress last summer.

Democratic leaders pushed the bill through the House, although the final vote, 372 to 31, included wide support in both parties. Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas had indorsed it.

The bill would add an estimated $600,000,000 to present social security payments in the first year. It calls for a one-half cent increase in the payroll tax paid by the worker and his employer; it is now 2 per cent on the first $4200 of earnings each year.

DEMONSTRATORS
ROUTED IN TUNIS
BY FRENCH TROOPS

TUNIS, March 22 (AP) — Hundreds of Tunisian nationalists, flying rebel flags, clashed with police and security troops here today in a demonstration for complete, immediate independence from France.

Fire hoses and tear gas grenades finally routed them after a 45-minute fight. Police arrested several dozen persons and seized their flags. No one was reported seriously injured.

The demonstrators were followers of Salah Ben Youssef, an extreme nationalist who advocates cutting all ties with France at once.

They ran into a large force of police and troops, backed with tanks, in front of the headquarters of the Neo-Destour party, a moderate backer of the independence movement.

The demonstration showed discontent over the joint French-Tunisian declaration signed in Paris Tuesday which set forth France's aim to grant the protectorate freedom after terms of a new relationship of "interdependence" are worked out in negotiations opening April 16.

Ben Youssef broke last fall with Neo-Destour President Habib Bourguiba, who has been negotiating with the French and obtaining concessions bit by bit.

U. S.-Japanese Patent Pact.
TOKYO, March 22 (AP) — Japan and the United States signed an agreement yesterday to aid interchange of patent rights and technical information which will help mutual defense.

Folsom urged extension of OASI coverage to make it as "nearly universal as practicable." He indorsed provisions in the House bill and in other pending legislation which would extend the coverage to self-employed attorneys, dentists, osteopaths, optometrists, veterinarians, the military services, federal employees and various other groups.

HEIRESS SUES
PSYCHIATRIST
FOR $1,500,000

NEW YORK, March 22 (AP) — An heiress to a washing machine fortune sued her woman psychiatrist yesterday, claiming the doctor lied to a relative about her mental condition.

Mrs. Elizabeth Revyuk asked for $1,500,000 damages from Dr. Flanders Dunbar. The doctor's lawyer called the allegations false and scandalous.

Mrs. Revyuk charged in state supreme court that Dr. Dunbar falsified her mental condition in a "corrupt bargain" with Frederick L. Maytag, Mrs. Revyuk's brother. The result, Mrs. Revyuk claimed, was a five-year legal fight over her $1,250,000 inheritance.

Mrs. Revyuk is one of four children sharing the $5,000,000 estate of the late E. H. Maytag. She said she was doctor Dunbar's patient for a month in 1947. The suit charged the doctor agreed, for a consideration, to co-operate with and assist from me the property left to me by my father."

At Newton, Ia., home of the Maytag firm, Frederick Maytag, president of the company, declined comment on the suit.

Excerpts From Transcript of Eisenhower's Press Conference

(AP).
Following are excerpts from the stenographic transcript of President Eisenhower's press conference yesterday:

Robert E. Clark, INS—Mr. President. Senator Kefauver said the large vote in the Minnesota primary indicates a revolt against your farm program. Can you give us your view of what happened in Minnesota yesterday?

The President— Well, no, I can't give any analysis of the Minnesota vote yesterday. But I do say this: For Minnesota is, of course, a very important state in the country; it is the first very large state that has a primary, and I remember that back in 1952, I think, that the great write-in vote did in Minnesota in my case, did as much as any other single thing to convince me that I should look at this political business a little bit more seriously than I had up to that moment.

I was certainly honored by what they did; so the same way this is something to be studied and see exactly what it does mean.

Now, with respect to the farm problem, I believe that farmers, as well as others, understand that this Administration is working hard to produce a program that gives them a hundred per cent of parity in the market place, and if you try to do that hundred per cent parity merely by passing laws to that effect, we are going to pile up trouble that we cannot possibly solve, because it means just pinning up of reserves and of surpluses, and the products in which we already are over-supplied.

I believe that the program sent to the Hill on this farm problem is comprehensive, helpful, not only helpful today in helping the farmer with his present problem of giving him some profitable way, some income, out of the business of eliminating acres from production, but in the long-term for that man's children and for his children's children, you will have a sound program, and you can't possibly have it merely by passing large rigid price support laws and say, "We will pay this."

If you would apply this to every product in the country, we would certainly be soon in a very bad hole.

Now, we are, with respect to that bill as it now stands—I don't think it is a good bill. I don't believe it is workable. I think it would bury the farmers under surpluses that they couldn't stand, and it would break the prices still further.

But I do point out that there is still a conference to go through, and I think those conferees, looking at this thing sensibly, may write a good bill, and one which can really be helpful to the farmer.

Rowland Evans Jr., New York Herald Tribune—Mr. President, there are some indications, sir, that some Negro leaders may be in the process of switching their political allegiance from the Democratic to the Republican party.

If you accept that premise, sir, could you discuss possible reasons for this?

The President— Well, I have got a very good one. I have told you a dozen times that it is anybody's judgment as to whether I am doing my job well or not doing it well, but as far as I am concerned, I am trying to do it for 166,000 people, not for any group.

I don't care how you define them, how you separate them geographically or racially or religiously, I am for America, and that is what I am trying to do. So if they want to come in under that umbrella, I welcome them with open arms.

Marguerite Higgins, New York Herald Tribune—Mr. President . . . in light of the renewed Arab accusation that the United States is reverting to a support of colonialism in the Middle East, would you clarify United States' policy on the African movements for national independence?

The President— Well, first of all, with my approval, Ambassador Dulles made a speech yesterday in France, and that expressed—expresses our hope that there can be equitable and fair, just settlements of these merely by passing laws to that effect, we are going to pile up trouble that we cannot possibly solve, because it means just pinning up of reserves and of surpluses, and the products in which we already are over-supplied.

I believe that the program sent to the Hill on this farm problem is comprehensive, helpful, not only helpful today in helping the farmer with his present problem of giving him some profitable way, some income, out of the business of eliminating acres from production, but in the long-term for that man's children and for his children's children, you will have a sound program, and you can't possibly have it merely by passing large rigid price support laws and say, "We will pay this."

Now, this is, I recognize, this is an easy speech to make. It is a hard thing to bring about, because you have got age-old antagonisms, but you have all sorts of fanatical thought brought to these problems that has no place really in it, except as it is always there; and you have, of course, the Communists interfering when they can.

Nevertheless, it remains our sincere effort in all of these areas to try to retain friendships with both sides and, therefore, use our good offices to bring about a decent solution.

James B. Reston, New York Times—Mr. President, would you kindly clarify for us your thinking about the relationship between the executive and the legislature in these difficult areas? For example, if the Middle Eastern situation is so serious as to be placed before the U.N. as a threat to the peace of the world, why is it not serious enough to be placed before the Congress to see what the sense of the Congress is about it?

The President— Well, as I see it, the two committees, the Foreign Relations Committee and the Foreign Affairs Committee are set up to keep in constant contact with the State Department, which is the executive agency for handling these affairs.

They—the policy-making officials of the department, the heads, appear constantly before these committees and keep them informed.

The President— You are asking me, I think, to be more of a lawyer than I certainly am.

But, as I understand it, there is a state law about boycotts, and it is under that kind of thing that these people are being brought to trial.

Wise Food Shoppers Study Labels

Information on Packages and Cans Is of Real Value to Homemaker if She Heeds It.

By DOROTHY BRAINERD
Post-Dispatch Food Editor

ELL, here we climb on our soap box again to beat the drums for one of our favorite causes. This is a matter which we sincerely feel is of such vital concern to homemakers that it bears repetition over and over again.

Please, homemakers, please take time to study the labels and directions on the cans and packages of food and household products that you buy. It can save you money and assure more satisfactory results.

These bits of information are of real value to you, at no extra cost, if you will just take advantage of them. They have cost the manufacturer staggering sums of money, because they want to be certain that you know just what you are buying and just how to use it.

For instance, there is no point in paying for handsome halves of peaches packed in heavy syrup if the recipe in which they are to be used calls for sliced peaches and no syrup. There is no point in buying a detergent intended for use on fine fabrics if you are going to use it for heavy duty cleaning. Another type will do the job more quickly and easily. Seem obvious? Yet women make these purchasing errors every day, in every market.

And please, we beg of you, follow the recipes on packages exactly. If a cake mix says to beat the batter a certain number of minutes do just that—no more, no less. This isn't a matter of individual preference; it's a tried and true formula.

PERHAPS women would take these directions more seriously if they realized the great amount of work that goes into them. In scores of ideally equipped kitchens throughout the land trained home economists test and re-test, then test again the products put out by major manufacturers.

These skyscraper test kitchens are an important part of operations; members of the board of directors of giant companies seriously ponder reports from the home economics department before introducing any new products.

These are the women who work out new recipes, who determine through scientific tests exactly how long that cake mix should be beaten and how long it should be baked.

They work with technicians in determining how effective new laundry products are, and how they should be used for best results. If directions say to use a cup of detergent you will get less than perfect results if you use three-fourths of a cup and will be wasteful if you use a cup and a fourth.

It is the home economists who test new equipment and new uses for it, find how such items as aluminum foil, vinyl film and other household products can make a homemaker's work easier. They are women working with products which will be used by women.

So important is this profession that Governor Phil M. Donnelly has proclaimed March 18-24 as Missouri Home Economics week to focus attention upon it. The field of home economics is a relatively new one, offering a fascinating career possibility for the young women of today.

But the important thing for you, as a homemaker, to remember is that these gals with a college degree in home economics are true friends of yours—if you will just accept their help by studying those labels and following those directions explicitly.

NOW for a run-down on current values in local markets. Citrus remains a little on the high side. The quality, however, is excellent. This seems to be particularly true of grapefruit—the flavor of both the white-meat Indian river grapefruit from Florida and the Texas fruit is superb.

Pears, fresh pineapples, apples and strawberries are all freely available. Cantaloups and honeydews are here in limited quantities.

Prices on strawberries are not too far out of line for this time of year.

HERE is a summary of the way vegetables line up, broken down into low, moderate and high budget classifications. This does not indicate that each individual item has advanced or lowered in price during the past week, but that at current prices they could be fitted into strict economy, average, or luxury budgets.

Low Budget: Broccoli, carrots, cabbage, celery, onions, old and new potatoes, sweet potatoes, green onions, parsnips and rutabagas.

Moderate Budget: String beans, beets, red cabbage, cauliflower, eggplant, cucumbers, iceberg lettuce, mustard, kale, spinach, turnip tops, peppers, white squash.

High Budget: Asparagus, brussels sprouts, corn, leaf lettuce, oyster plant, okra, acorn squash, tomatoes.

Traditional Breads of the Season

The making and serving of special breads at Easter and during the Lenten season is a custom which has been observed for centuries. Hot Cross Buns, those little yeast rolls flavored with pure vanilla extract and laden with dried fruits, are perhaps the best known. They are shown here with Grandmother's Easter Bread.

FOR CENTURIES special breads have been associated with Easter and the Lenten season; the making and serving of them is an interesting link with the past. The origin of Hot Cross Buns, the traditional breakfast breads of Lent, has been traced back nearly six centuries. Actually, the marking of new loaves of bread with the sign of the Cross is a practice that is even more ancient but the first Hot Cross Buns, as we know them today, originated in England in the middle of the fourteenth century.

The custom is said to have been started by a group of English monks who made the rolls themselves and distributed them to the poor each year on Good Friday morning. There are no set rules for making them except for the cross of frosting.

By custom they are usually small round yeast rolls which include dried fruits and other flavorings. A deliciously flavored and slightly different recipe is this one, in which pure vanilla extract gives the buns a mellowed, sweet flavor.

Hot Cross Buns.

Two packages active dry yeast.

One-half cup warm water (110-115 degrees).

One-third cup sugar.

One and one-half cups milk, scalded.

Three teaspoons salt.

Two teaspoons pure vanilla extract.

Two eggs.

Six to six and one-fourth cups sifted all-purpose flour.

One-third cup shortening.

One-half cup seedless raisins.

One-half cup dried currants.

One-fourth cup sliced citron.

One-fourth cup chopped candied orange peel.

One egg yolk.

Two tablespoons milk.

Thin Vanilla Confectioners' Sugar and Water Frosting.

Yield: three eight-inch round loaves.

There is no tradition connected with this recipe; it is as new as your Easter bonnet. But these little "bunny biscuits" will delight the family at Easter breakfast. They are delicious and easy to make.

Cake flour is used to make them extra light and tender.

The bunnies are formed from biscuit dough circles of three sizes—two inch, one inch and one-fourth inch. For cutting these use biscuit or cookie cutters or patterns cut from cardboard. Serve them hot with plenty of butter and jam or marmalade.

Easter Bunny Orange Biscuits.

Two cups sifted cake flour.

Two teaspoons double-acting baking powder.

Three-fourths teaspoon salt.

Five tablespoons shortening.

Two teaspoons grated orange rind.

One-half cup milk (about).

One tablespoon sugar.

One and one-half teaspoons orange juice (about).

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening. Add orange rind and blend. Add.

Gradually add remaining flour, working it well on a board. Continue kneading until smooth and elastic. Shape into a ball and place in a greased bowl. Grease top with a warm place (80 to 85 degrees) until double in size.

Bake in a preheated moderate oven (400 degrees) 15 minutes or until browned.

While warm, make a cross in top of rolls with thin vanilla Confectioners' Sugar and Water Frosting. Yield: two and one-half dozen rolls.

Thin Vanilla Confectioners' Sugar and Water Frosting:

Mix three-fourths cup sifted confectioners' sugar and one tablespoon water and one-fourth teaspoon pure vanilla extract.

Almost every country has its own version of an Easter bread. In the Germanic provinces Funkenring, made of a rich dough with raisins and garnished with miniature pretzels shaped from the dough, was served on the last Sunday before Lent and on Easter Sunday. Egg Koulitz is still popular in Switzerland, Koulitz was as traditional a part of the Easter feast of old Russia as their brightly decorated eggs.

The following recipe for Grandmother's Easter Bread had its origin in Brazil.

Grandmother's Easter Bread.

Two packages active dry yeast.

One-half cup warm water (110-115 degrees).

One-half cup sugar.

One cup milk, scalded.

Two teaspoons salt.

One and one-half teaspoons pure vanilla extract.

One egg.

Four and one-half to five cups sifted all-purpose flour.

One-half cup butter or margarine, melted.

One cup thinly sliced citron.

Thin Vanilla Confectioners' Sugar and Water Frosting.

Soften yeast in warm water.

Add sugar and milk, cooled to lukewarm. Add salt, pure vanilla extract, and egg. Stir in two cups flour. Beat until batter falls in sheets from spoon.

Yield: 11 or 12 bunnies.

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — Pravda said today the Soviet Union has agreed to supply atomic energy reactors and research equipment to seven nations of the Communist bloc.

The Communist party organ, quoted by Moscow radio, said Red China will receive a 6000-kilowatt reactor and a cyclotron designed to produce particles with an energy of 25,000,000 electron volts.

It added that Poland, Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania will receive cyclotrons of similar size, along with 2000-kilowatt reactors.

The Soviet Union has a lead over other countries in the peaceful use of atomic energy," Pravda said, adding:

"The Soviet state has been consistently championing the prohibition of tests and use of

STEVENSON STOCK CALLED HIGHER IN EUROPE, THAN U.S.

LONDON, March 22 (UPI) — The London Times said today that Adlai Stevenson's defeat by Senator Estes Kefauver in Minnesota "proves once more that the Americans are funny people."

The Times says in an editorial that Stevenson is "one of those American leaders whose stock probably stands higher on this side of the Atlantic than it does in his own country."

"His liberal pronouncement, at the time of the last presidential election, found their echo in Europe," the Times says.

More recently he impressed those whom he met on his tour of the world with his balanced and sensible judgment. Nevertheless, it is possible for an American to have all those qualities and lack appeal to his people. That charge has been made from time to time, and for that, among other reasons, his heavy and unexpected defeat in the Minnesota primaries must be taken seriously."

CHILE PROTESTS TO BRITAIN AGAINST ANTARCTIC BASES

SANTIAGO, Chile, March 22 (UPI) — The Chilean Government announced today it has filed a formal protest against the establishment of two British bases in Antarctic territory disputed by the two countries.

The protest charges the bases on two nameless islands off Graham Land in the Falkland Islands dependencies "constitute an open violation of Chilean sovereignty."

ARMY UNVEILS
GUERRILLA UNIT

BAD TOELZ, Germany, March 22 (AP) — The United States Army yesterday removed security wraps from an American airborne guerrilla unit trained in the Bavarian Alps for behind-the-lines wartime duty.

Only fragmentary facts have been released previously on the mission of the Tenth Special Forces Group Airborne.

In event of war, they would be parachuted behind enemy lines, where their main job would be to train partisans for action against the enemy.

Here in some of the most rugged country in the world, the men are taught how to ambush the enemy, storm prisons and destroy supplies and installations.

They learn survival, foreign languages, judo, battlefield surgery, radio communications and guerrilla tactics.

LANGER MAKES IT OFFICIAL

WASHINGTON, March 22 (UPI) — Senator William Langer (Rep.) North Dakota, admitted yesterday what his colleagues have privately contended—he is unpredictable.

"I don't know what I'm going to do because I'm very unpredictable," Langer told the Senate in debate on a proposed constitutional amendment.

ONE LOCAL VOTES TO STAY OUT AT WESTINGHOUSE

Members Refuse to Work Pending Settlement of 9 Suspensions for Violence.

PITTSBURGH, March 22 (AP)—A 500-member union local has refused to return to work at the Westinghouse Electric Corp. plant in nearby Sharon, bringing from the company a charge the local was violating a pact that ended the 136-day nation-wide strike against Westinghouse.

In ruling against the United Electrical Workers (UE), the court decided that the union, if it wants to pursue the matter, must look to the National Labor Relations Board. The UE was among the unions expelled by the CIO in a 1949-50 purge of alleged followers of the Communist party lines.

DURFEE NOMINATED FOR CAB

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—President Eisenhower today nominated James Durfee, chairman of the Wisconsin Public Service Commission, to be a member of the Civil Aeronautics Board. Durfee, 57-year-old Republican, would succeed Ross Rizley, who has been named a federal judge for Oklahoma.

Most of the 44,000 IUE members were returning to work gradually in 29 other plants under terms of the five-year contract agreed to Tuesday night.

Second Strike Front.
 On the second front, company negotiators resumed talks with officials of the independent United Electrical Workers (UE) in hopes of quickly resolving a dispute that still has 10,500 employees idle at 10 plants. James J. Matles, director of organization for the UE, said, "Progress toward peace could be speeded."

Matles said the AFL-CIO IUE contract agreement with the company has little effect on the UE strike.

The settlement with IUE included a provision dealing with 36 workers who had been fired for alleged picket line violence during the strike.

The national agreement provided that 36 men were to be placed on indefinite suspension pending disposition of their cases. It called for discussion of each case at the plant level. If the union wasn't satisfied, it could take the cases to arbitration.

4 Cases Discussed.
 Henry Gunesch, business agent of Local 617, told his members the company would discuss only four of the nine cases yesterday. He said these four had been resolved with "definite suspensions" and that discussion of the five remaining cases would be held today.

Although Gunesch would not say what the "definite suspensions" were, a source close to both union and management said a six-week suspension had been agreed upon.

The mass meeting quickly followed Gunesch's recommendation that picket lines be set up and no one return to work pending another membership meeting tomorrow night.

There was no comment from the union's international officers, headed by James H. Carey. But Westinghouse declared:

"This action by the Sharon local is a direct violation of the strike settlement agreement. It clearly is an obvious move to bring pressure on our Sharon management concerning the men who were indefinitely suspended."

★ Time Out For Personal Inventory
SITTING AROUND THE KITCHEN TABLE of a neighbor this morning enjoying a second cup of Top-Taste coffee, one of the girls came forth with an original idea. We were discussing Lent and all the housework going on inventories and it struck me thinking I'd take one too... an inventory of myself. Let's admit everyone of us has a bad habit or more, and Lent is a good time to work on making the changes. Well, no one is going to out-cure me! But how can the list be so long?

★ ONLY AS TOMATO CAN
IT'S DELICIOUS! Tomato soup gingerbread that is! Next time try 1 can tomato condensed soup and 1/4 cup water to one pac-age of Gingerbread Mix.

★ A New Look For You!
NOW IS THE TIME to experiment with a new hair dress... try on one of the sketch dresses to SEE if they're for you or you're for them... trim the cordons with 55 worth of beads and glitter to make it look like $50... give the strings of pearls a soap and water bath and dye the old strands. Yes! this is your month!

★ Feasts For Fast Days
SOCIAL ACTIVITIES may slow down during Lent, but never homemaking duties. Meal planning need not be a problem for those who abide by the Lenten doctrine. At your neighborly NATIONAL Food Store there is such an abundant variety of fresh-frozen, smoked and canned fish and seafood that meal-making ideas will tumble out by the dozens.

★ LIGHT FOOD—LIGHT ON THE BUDGET
AHLIVE JUST SOLVED A PROBLEM of what to serve three charitable friends who are coming in for dinner and to give me a bridge lesson: fish sticks with lobster newburg sauce-beet aspic ring-chilled canned peaches topped with the best eggnog. Sounds kinda fancy, doesn't it, but know you have to show off once in a while. People never stop to figure how little the cost, time or effort.

★ Discipline Is Appreciated—Too Late
IT WASN'T OUT OF THE MOUTH OF A BABY, but from Teen-agers I heard on TV the other night. Very earnestly and honestly they said they needed the right kind of Motherly (and Fatherly) advice to discipline them in their mature forming years. You'll learn—maybe too late—that when your children grow up and look back, they really appreciate your efforts and discipline, and this is especially true when they have a bread of their own. But you have to do it right. Be a pal to your teen-agers and their friends—not nasty or naggy but nice and firm.

★ THE $64,000 QUESTION
READY FOR THE ISOLATION BOOTH? What bird is the bus-test one in the United States? You're right—the stork! His 1955 record up to the last count was 4,078,000 bundles of joy and he's out to beat this record in 1956. If he misses your date, he'll be back in time to be the first to say, "I'm sorry." He looked around our NATIONAL Food Store to see what's for baby. Oh, that lucky offspring! More than 300 foods, teethers, teasers and comfort supplies in our many departments. You bet we're ready to start 'em off young as NATIONAL'S best cus-

★ HE SHOULD SEE HIS COUNTRY NOW
GEORGE WASHINGTON wouldn't know his country if he returned today. Instead of one cherry tree there are millions, and instead of cutting them down we turn them to healthy productivity. Look what we get! Canned cherries for making cherry pies and tarts, maraschino cherries for party foods and beverages. And the new one that would floor George W. would be from cherry jam—individual or family size, ready to heat and eat in a jiffy! Does this do anything for you for NATIONAL Cherry Week? Bet it does!

★ A LOT OF SERVICE FOR SO LITTLE
A 12 YEAR OLD BOY told me the other day that there are as many vertebrae in the neck of a mouse as there are in the neck of a pug. Very interesting. But more interesting and more helpful is the fact that my son is right. NATIONAL Food Store around the corner (and yours too) carries some 4000 items for our convenience.
Now brace yourself for the profits! NATIONAL makes on each one dollar ($1) you spend there exactly 1 1/4 cents. That's right, C E N T S ! No wonder it makes sense to shop at NATIONAL!

★ Sincere thanks for those nice letters this week. My replies are in the mail. Until next week at this same place, happy days!

KERENSKY'S SON WON'T BE INTERPRETER FOR MALENKOV

STAFFORD, England, March 22 (AP)—George Kerenky, an electrical engineer here, turned down a job yesterday as interpreter for Georgi Malenkov during the former premier's visit. "I'm against him," Kerenky said.

The engineer's father, Alexander Kerenky, was overthrown by the Bolsheviks while serving as Premier of the first post-Czarist Russian government in 1917. The elder Kerenky now lives in California.

FATHER JOSEPH LANNON DIES

CHICAGO, March 22 (AP)—The Rev. Joseph T. Lannon S.J., teacher, pastor and former Indian missionary, died yesterday. He was pastor of St. Ignatius Church, Chicago, from 1944 until a year ago when failing health forced his retirement.

Father Lannon was 65 years old and a native of Chicago. He entered the Society of Jesus in 1907, was graduated from St. Louis University in 1911 and taught in Jesuit schools in Omaha, Neb., Toledo, O., and in Indian missions in South Dakota.

The engineer's father, Alexander Kerenky, was overthrown by the Bolsheviks while serving as Premier of the first post-Czarist Russian government in 1917. The elder Kerenky now lives in California.

MENDES-FRANCE

TELLS OF SPY HUNT

Gives His Side of 1954 Defense Secrets Leaks to Reds.

PARIS, March 22 (AP)—Former Premier Pierre Mendes-France told France's defense trial today that he was conducting a harried spy hunt at the same time in 1954 that he was engaged in top-level talks with Britain and the United States.

He said the "most infamous charges" were published daily in French newspapers in connection with the defense leak, making his position at the conference shaky. Politcal opponents intimated at the time that Mendes-France was allowing information to get to the Communists.

The former Premier testified for the first time in the two-week-old trial which is investigating the leak of secrets from the Supreme National Defense Council during the last months of the Indochina war. Three former high civil servants and a Communist newspaperman are charged with letting information get to the French Communist party. The prosecution says the Reds passed the secrets on to the Red Vietnamese rebels in Indochina.

Mendes-France, now Minister of State in the cabinet of Premier Mollet, said he had difficulties searching the Security Council's quarters for microphones and wire taps during that period but that they found nothing.

"I must tell you," said Mendes-France, "that I was pleased to learn that while I was working for what I believed to be the good of the country, there existed on one side traitors who gave away our secrets and, on the other, politicians who did not hesitate to carry over into foreign affairs their hostility toward our internal policies."

Disclosure of the source of the leaks brought a change in the attitude of the Allies with whom he was conferring in London in September 1954, Mendes-France said. The conference agreed on West German rearmament within the Western European Union defense treaty.

By the United Press
Mendes-France testified that United States Secretary of State John Foster Dulles once told him the United States had received "nasty reports" about him during his premiership.

Mendes-France said Dulles told him "we are convinced that these wretched reports are fabrications."

Mendes-France's story of his conversation with Dulles amplified previous testimony of his former minister of the interior, Francois Mitterrand, concerning a telephone conversation between Mendes-France and Mitterrand during the London conference.

Mitterrand has testified that Mendes-France told him his negotiations in London were hampered because the British and Americans had been warned that everything they discussed with Mendes-France was phoned straight to the Kremlin.

SOME OFFICIALS OF FHA CRITICIZED FOR PRACTICES

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—The General Accounting Office said yesterday some Federal Housing Administration officials in Kansas City, Mo., and Cleveland have been following practices that could run real estate prices up or down. The statement was in testimony by Owen A. Kane, legislative attorney for GAO, which is the official watchdog for Congress on operations in the executive branch of the Government.

Kane gave few details in his testimony before a Senate banking subcommittee on housing. GAO auditors, he said, have found "specific instances of failure to follow procedures prescribed in the FHA underwriting manual" in appraising properties for Government mortgage insurance.

$28,000,000 EGYPT COTTON DEAL WITH RED CHINA

Cairo, March 22 (AP)—Commerce Minister Mohamed Abou Mosseir said yesterday Communist China had agreed to buy $28,000,000 worth of cotton from Egypt in March and April.

Mosseir made the announcement at the beginning of talks with a Red China trade mission aimed at expanding trade beyond that called for in a three-year agreement.

DENTIST DESCRIBES ULTRASONIC DRILL

It Is Found to Do No More Damage Than Rotary Device.

Experiments with monkeys indicate that the ultrasonic dental drill, which vibrates at speeds in excess of 29,000 times a second, does no more damage to teeth than the conventional rotary drill, the International Association for Dental Research was told today at Hotel Sherman-Jefferson.

Capt. Ira Shannon, a dental officer at the School of Aviation Medicine, Randolph Air Force Base, Tex., reported on a study conducted by a research team there. The ultrasonic drill, still experimental, has been termed virtually painless and noiseless.

In the study, more than 120 cavities in seven Rhesus monkeys were prepared for filling. Some were excavated with carbon steel burs, rotating 8500 times a minute, and some with the ultrasonic drill. In the latter, what does the actual drilling is an abrasive-containing liquid dripped to the edge of the instrument.

Capt. Shannon said the pulps of the teeth were examined under a microscope 24 hours to 60 days after the cavity preparation. The pulp of a tooth consists of the nerve and blood vessels, the part beneath the enamel and dentine layers.

"Major pulp pathology was approximately equally distributed between the two groups of teeth," he reported. This referred to inflammation and other reactions that might be caused deep within teeth by heat, friction or sonic vibrations.

The problem with high-speed rotary dental drills is friction that causes heat. In the case of the ultrasonic drill, dental research is trying to learn the tooth's range of tolerance to sonic vibrations which might under certain conditions cause harm.

Another report gave some support to the frequently repeated theory that tough foods are better for teeth than soft foods. It was made by Dr. Viola D. Flanagan and Dr. Hugh L. Myers, of the University of Kansas City School of Dentistry.

In the Kansas City study, it was found that tooth-restitution in rats was successful in 65 per cent of cases where the animals were on a hard-food diet, and in only 30 per cent of cases where they were on soft food.

A replanted tooth is a tooth that has been extracted and then reinserted in the gums. The operation has been performed on human beings. In most instances, a wisdom tooth has been used to replace a lost first or second molar.

The thirty-fourth annual meeting of the research association began today and will end Sunday.

Muffins with the special flavor of wild blueberries—serve them warm and fragrant with a fruit salad

"You may wonder why we chose wild blueberries for our muffin mix—and the answer is for their superior flavor. Wild blueberries—like other wild fruits—have a special tang that makes a tastier muffin.

"You'll find a generous can of them in the box of mix, enough to flavor each delicious bite of these muffins. And this is real muffin batter—not dessert-sweet! Takes just a few minutes to mix, and you're ready to pop the pan in the oven.

"Serve them at their very best—warm. With a salad of fine fresh fruits, they're a perfect luncheon when you have 'the girls' in—or a just-right ending to a simple meal."

LANDIS MACHINE CO. BUYS
ARROW SHOE MACHINERY CO.

Capital stock of the Arrow Shoe Machinery Co., 615 South Sixth street, has been sold to the Landis Machine Co., Victor Vohsen, Landis president, announced yesterday. Purchase price was not disclosed.

The Arrow company, which is also a distributor of imported shoe machinery, was founded in 1945. It will be operated by Landis as a wholly-owned subsidiary and its facilities primarily used for rebuilding used machinery, traded for new equipment, Vohsen said.

The 61-year-old Landis firm, one of the largest manufacturers of shoe machinery in the United States, was taken over by a group of out-of-town investors last January, when they purchased more than 40 per cent of the Landis stock. The Landis firm is at 411 East Gano street.

HERBERT DOUGLAS TO RUN FOR SENATE

Neosho Republican Was Candidate for Attorney General in 1948.

NEOSHO, Mo., March 22 (AP)—Herbert Douglas, Neosho attorney, today announced he would seek the Republican nomination for United States Senator.

The 41-year-old World War II veteran was the G.O.P. nominee for Attorney General in 1948. He served two terms as Newton county prosecuting attorney before entering the Army.

Douglas, in a statement announcing his intention to file, said that since the state's present Senators are both from St. Louis, Missouri should have representation from an agricultural section.

"More consideration should be given to the farmer so that he will receive a larger share of the national income than he is now getting," he said. "I am familiar with the farm problem and I am in favor of the principle of the soil bank bill."

He said he was proud of the record made by the Eisenhower Administration "and I feel that we will continue to have booming times without bombing guns if President Eisenhower along with a Republican Congress is elected in November."

"I believe that working persons should have a right to organize and belong to a union for the over-all benefit of all working people," his statement added. "I am also opposed to any discrimination against any person because of color, politics or religious affiliation."

University of Missouri, is a former president of the Missouri Association of Republicans and the Missouri Prosecuting Attorneys Association.

United States Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. of St. Louis, the Democratic incumbent, has announced he will seek re-election this year.

NEW 'BLUE BOOK' IS OUT; DONNELLY GETS FIRST COPY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 22—The first copy of Missouri's 1955-1956 "Blue Book" was presented to Gov. Phil M. Donnelly today by Secretary of State Walter H. Oberman.

The official manual of the state contains information on state, county and local government, as well as information on political committees, party organizations, political platforms, candidates and election data.

The book, edited by Mrs. Thelma Goodwin of the state's attorney's department, contains 1,321 pages. It lists the names, salaries and residences of all state employees, state officials, and board members.

Legislative appropriations provide for publication of 40,000 copies. Copies go to all high schools and libraries in the state. Each of the 157 members of the House of the Missouri legislature will receive 100 copies, and each of the 34 state Senators 200 copies, for distribution to constituents.

Japanese Socialists Beaten.

TOKYO, March 22 (UPI)—Government forces in parliament crushed a Socialist motion of no confidence against Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu because of his alleged "too pro-American" policies.

The motion was defeated in the House of Representatives by a vote of 249 to 139.

Heads Viet Nam Assembly. SAIGON, South Viet Nam, March 22 (AP)—Tran Van Lam was elected president of South Viet Nam's new constituent assembly today. He is governor of South Viet Nam, a job which makes him the government's top man in local affairs, and heads the assembly's second strongest political party, the Viet Nam Citizens Rally.

FRENCH TROOPS IN ALGERIA
BATTLE 200 GUERRILLAS

ALGIERS, March 22 (UPI)—The hit-and-run guerrilla war in Algeria erupted briefly into large-scale fighting yesterday when French troops battled 200 guerrillas near the provincial town of Chevreuil, it was reported today.

Two French soldiers and 10 Arabs were killed in the clash, which accounted for more than a third of the 35 fatalities reported in Algeria yesterday. Others killed during the day included a French merchant murderer in his shop, four French soldiers shot down in an ambush 60 miles south of Bone, and 18 guerrillas killed in scattered clashes elsewhere in Algeria.

Algeria Minister Robert LaCoste left today for Paris, where he will report to the cabinet tomorrow on the progress of his campaign to crush the rebellion.

TESTS INDICATE CEREBELLUM 'LEARNS'

Vanderbilt U. Anatomy Head Describes Experiments in Address.

Experiments indicating that the cerebellum, or "little brain," is able to "learn" through adaptation to stimuli were described last night by Dr. Sam L. Clark Sr., head of the department of anatomy at the Vanderbilt University school of medicine.

Dr. Clark, delivering the annual Robert J. Terry lecture sponsored by the Washington University school of medicine, also said the experiments he has conducted may make possible the early recognition of diseases of the cerebellum, such as atrophy.

In the experiments, he said, electrical stimuli were given to cats, fish and birds, means of an apparatus attached to the cerebellum, a non-conscious part of the nervous system involved in muscle co-ordination and balance.

He told an audience at the David P. Wohl Jr. Memorial Hospital auditorium that the apparatus served both to produce physical stimuli and to record the cerebellum's response.

Sounds, as stimuli, also were used, he said. The electrical measuring apparatus showed steadily decreasing responses when sounds were closely repeated, he said, indicating that the cerebellum can learn by adaptation.

One sound, he explained, would produce a clear reaction as measured on a graph attached to the apparatus. Sounds repeated at one-second intervals produced progressively smaller waves on the graph, he said, until no wave was recorded.

Electrical stimuli produced seizures in the animals which have not been recognized generally in human beings, Dr. Clark said.

However, two or three cases have come to his attention in which humans apparently had similar seizures, he continued.

He said that the seizures in the laboratory animals might be early signs of cerebellum disease, and, if so, would be valuable in attempting to determine whether similar disease warnings could be observed in humans.

The experiments, which are being supported by the United States Public Health Service, are attempts to obtain basic data about the way in which the cerebellum controls muscle power, he said.

It has long been known, Dr. Clark added, that the cerebellum receives "information" about the body's balance from the so-called inner ear, in order to co-ordinate movements. Only recently, however, has it been established that the cerebellum receives visual and auditory "information," too, he said.

Dr. Clark, a past president of the American Association of Anatomists and associate editor of the American Journal of Anatomy, was a member of the Washington University medical school's department of anatomy from 1924 to 1928. His son, Dr. Sam L. Clark Jr., is an instructor and Louis M. Palmer senior fellow in anatomy at the medical school here.

The lectureship was established in 1938 in honor of Dr. Terry, professor emeritus of anatomy and then head of the anatomy department, who retired from teaching in 1941 but is still active in research.

'Nagging' Unappreciated.

MUSKEGON, Mich., March 22 (INS)—Diana Titus's marriage went up in a puff of smoke. The 19-year-old Muskegon woman won a suit for divorce when she explained that her husband, Gordon, 20, asked her to help him stop smoking and then accused her of nagging when she tried to encourage him.

ATOMS-FOR-PEACE TALKS RECESSED
AFTER DEADLOCK

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP)—A secret 12-nation conference recessed yesterday after three and one-half weeks of trying to reach agreement on a charter for an atoms-for-peace agency.

The conferees, including delegations from the United States and Russia, started closed-door talks Feb. 27. Their goal was unanimous support of a proposed charter which would be adopted upon by 84 nations.

The meeting was an outgrowth of President Eisenhower's proposal to the United Nations in December 1953, that a U.N. agency be created to develop peaceful uses of atomic power.

Russia gave in during the talks on a key issue—how the proposed agency would be tied to the U.N. Security Council. Differences arose over other issues, notably on control of nuclear materials which could be used for atomic bombs and on the composition of the agency's board of governors.

A conference spokesman said the recess was requested because many delegates had made other appointments in the expectation that the conference would have ended by now.

CHAMBER MUSIC SERIES PROGRAM IS ENGAGING

The Washington University chamber music series came up with one of its season's most engaging programs last night. Things clicked. Enjoyable music was impressively performed.

Vivian Wilkerson, pianist and a senior in the College of Liberal Arts, was soloist for the first St. Louis performance of Francis Poulen's delightful Concerto for Piano and Eighteen Instruments. She had all the technique and temperament necessary for this music and, best of all, played it with obvious enjoyment. The composition of eight short movements was replete with Poulen's melody, charm, wit and eclecticism ranging from Schubert to Stravinsky. Its more exposed orchestral parts were cleanly played, orchestral solos expertly ly performed. Leigh Gerdine, the conductor, admirably balanced orchestra, composed mainly of symphony musicians, with the piano.

Tenor Leslie Chabay, artist-in-residence at the university, tenor cantata "Meine Seele war excellent and the required vocalisms and mood of no piece escaped him. Gerdine's piano was a valuable asset to the deal of authority. His artistry could be more appreciated. His accompaniment combined to make these performances memorable.

Birthday of Mrs. Eisenhower Marked Belatedly With Big Fete

Party Planned for 59th Anniversary Last Nov. 14 Was Postponed Because of President's Illness.

WASHINGTON, March 22 (AP) — Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower is being given a delayed but much enlarged party today in honor of her fifty-ninth birthday.

Her birthday falls on Nov. 14. Today's party, originally planned for that date, was postponed because of President Eisenhower's illness.

The President, after recovery from his Sept. 24 heart attack, flew from Denver to Washington with Mrs. Eisenhower on Nov. 12. Then they went on to their home at Gettysburg, Pa., in time for her birthday.

Some 600 women arranged to attend today's delayed party, sponsored by the wives of the heads of the federal independent agencies.

Mrs. Whitney Gilliland of Glenwood, Ia., chairman of the group, said the original plan was to have a musical tribute to Mrs. Eisenhower.

Now the CBS and ABC television networks volunteered to help present Mrs. Eisenhower's favorite songs across the nation, with programs originating in Washington and New York. The songs include "Memories Are Made of This," "Lovey Lake Geneva," "Down Among the Sheltering Palms," "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise," "Church in the Wildwood,"

"Tip Toe Through the Tulips" and "I'm in Love With a Wonderful Guy."

Mrs. Gilliland's husband is chairman of the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission. Others helping to plan the party include:

Mrs. Frederick Stueck, St. Louis, wife of member of the Federal Power Commission;

Mrs. Wendell B. Barnes, Tulsa, Okla., wife of the head of the Small Business Administration;

Mrs. George C. McConaughay, Columbus, O., wife of the chairman of the Federal Communications Commission;

Mrs. Albert M. Cole, Holton, Kan., wife of the housing administrator; Mrs. Leonard Carmichael, Washington, wife of the secretary of the Smithsonian Institution; Mrs. Thomas Coggeshall, wife of the chairman of the Renegotiation Board; Mrs. Edgar E. Witt, wife of the chief commissioner of the Indian Claims Commission, and Mrs. Kenneth H. Tugle, wife of the interstate commerce commissioner.

Survives Five-Floor Plunge.

NEW YORK, March 22 (UP) — A 75-year-old man plunged five floors from his apartment yesterday and lived to tell the tale. Police said Max Weiring landed in a snowbank. He suffered a possible concussion and a fractured right arm.

SYNTHESIZED CHEMICAL LINKED TO BODY ENERGY

BERKELEY, Calif., March 22 (UPI)—They've synthesized a new chemical at the University of California here that has proved to be an important link in several of the processes by which the body burns food to obtain energy. The compound is a sugar-like substance and one of a number in body chemistry synthesized over the years by Dr. Hermann O. L. Fischer, professor of biochemistry. The latest is called D-erythrose 4-phosphate.

Compounds like the new phosphate enable the body to break down and use sugar, starch and other carbohydrates. Working with Dr. Fischer were Drs. C. E. Ballou and D. L. MacDonald.

CIVIL DEFENSE
CHIEF REPLIES TO CRITICISM

Peterson Says Agency Is Making Progress
but Is Not Yet Adequate.

DODGING ADAGIO LESSONS,
YOUTH STAYS OUT TILL 2 A.M.

TOLEDO, O., March 22—A 16-year-old boy brought before a juvenile court referee for staying out until 2 a.m. explained his mother wanted him to take adagio dancing.

"I thought I was going crazy," the boy explained.

He said that in desperation he took to staying out late at night until his mother had gone to bed so he could escape the dreaded practice sessions.

The court advised the mother to stop the dancing lessons.

WASHINGTON, March 22 (UPI)—Civil Defense Administrator Val Peterson agreed with critics today that the nation's civil defense is "inadequate to meet an all-out thermonuclear attack."

But Peterson insisted his agency has made and is making progress. "If there is anyone ready for the thermonuclear war I'd like to be introduced to him," the former Nebraska Governor said in an interview.

Critics have charged before a House Government Operations subcommittee that the non-military defense program is "worse than no program at all."

This specific charge was made by Maj. Gen. Otto Nelson, director of the so-called Project East River, a scientific survey of home front defenses. Peterson said Nelson was quoted in the press as criticizing Civil Defense alone when he meant all non-military defense, of which civil defense is only a phase.

Peterson's Reply.

Non-military defense, Peterson said, also includes the dispersion of industry outside target areas and providing for continuity of Government and other operations in case of a nuclear attack.

Many of these functions are not under jurisdiction of his Civil Defense Agency, and others have been delegated to it as recently as a few weeks ago, he said.

Peterson said many of the inadequacies of Civil Defense lie in the size of the problem, the newness of it, and the fact that the problem is being dealt with by using volunteers and small expenditures.

He said Civil Defense has shown its worth in disasters. It has trained thousands of people and created emergency stockpiles, including $160,000,000 in medical supplies. Every state and city has some kind of Civil Defense organization.

Study of Survival Plans.

Peterson said survival plans are now being studied for the nation's big metropolitan target areas. When these studies are completed, he said, a sound program can be worked out for the nation on a cost-account basis.

"The real test of whether America is serious about survival lies in its willingness to disperse the expansion of industry and start building shelters, including putting elements of our military productive facilities under ground," he said.

He also said there should be more unity and centralization of all non-military defense.

"I personally believe there should be created a department of non-military defense including all these elements. I have recommended it, and it is receiving study in the Government," Peterson said.

Dream Time for Prep Coaches as All-Star Team Is Announced

4 Seniors,
One Junior Selected

By Harold Tuthill

Some prep coaches, instead of counting sheep on sleepless winter nights, indulge in thoughts of what they could do with a high school basketball team made up of the five best players in St. Louis and that's what the annual district team, announced today, is—a coach's dream.

The team, selected mostly from personnel of championship squads, is composed of Don Sullivan of Beaumont, George Burkell of Cleveland, Tom Weathersby of Summer, Bill O'Brien of Mercy and Jack Pirie of Maplewood.

There's no particular significance to the order in which WEBSITE is listed as it stood high in the opinion of the Post-Dispatch Board composed of Roy D. Newsom, Samuel Shepard, Art Shephard, Froebel Gaines, Tom McConnell, Ed Hagan, John J. Archibald and the writer.

Plenty of Reach.

With 6-8 Burkell and 6-6½ Sullivan the star team has height. Pirie, at 6-5, and Weathersby, at 6-3, hold their own with the taller boys and O'Brien, although 5-10, makes up in speed and hustle what he lacks in size. The Mercy guard is the only junior, the others being seniors.

All are outstanding scorers. Pirie, the graceful Maplewood center in whom the St. Louis Hawks have shown enough professional interest to delegate him as their draft choice four years hence, has had a brilliant career culminated by a scoring spree of 809 points on this winter's schedule of 33 games.

Pirie has scored a total of 1742 points, many of them instrumental in helping the Leafs sweep the Suburban League championship for three straight years. They also made two successive appearances in the state tournament, finishing fourth in 1955 and second in the recent classic at Washington U.

Burkell scored 786 points in 27 games. O'Brien made 613 in 26. Weathersby 516 in 24 and Sullivan 429, but Sullivan missed several games because of illness. All are excellent rebounders, including the catlike O'Brien who frequently happens to be in the right spot for recoveries. Burkell, one of the best rebounders in the sport, grabbed 396 rebounds and Sullivan, with 437, made even a better showing.

Glory Galore.

To illustrate the value of the stars to their teams, Beaumont became state champion after winning first a four-team tournament at St. Louis U. High and then the Hadley Tech regional. Maplewood, the Suburban king, won the Clayton regional; Cleveland, which showed steady improvement, advanced out of the St. Louis U. High regional; Summer, the Public High champion, also captured the league's first holiday tournament; and Mercy, the Catholic Athletic Conference champion, survived the Normandy regional to gain the state series

Akins Victory Over Constance

By W. J. McGoogan

Wednesday night fights are too close for comfort, it seems. Before the arguments over Johnny Saxon's victory over Carmen Basilio in Chicago died down, a new batch started at The Arena, when Virgil Akins, St. Louis' welterweight, scored a unanimous decision over Hector Constance of Trinidad.

Akins and Constance fought a close fight all night but each of the officials, Referee Benny Kessler and Judges Howard Hess and Fred Connell, saw the St. Louis batter ahead, 51-49. And the latter's score sheet agreed with that. So did the A.P. United Press card. But the A.P. had it a draw.

There was a lusty chorus of boos from the crowd of 1,274 when the verdict was announced, however, and some applause, but one of those meters for recording noise would have given the edge to the boos.

Also, a debate started in the corner occupied by Constance as one of his handlers, Joe Rizzo, started into the ring, apparently to protest, when he was stopped by Jimmy Augustus, Hector's trainer. They continued their argument until Constance stepped between them and waved them apart.

Virgil Starts Fast.

Akins fought one of his better fights and seemed to have the first three rounds, the fifth and the tenth.

Constance took the fourth, sixth, seventh, ninth and the eighth appeared to be even.

Kessler and Connell also gave Akins five rounds, to four for Constance with one even, while Hess had it three for Akins, two for Constance and five even.

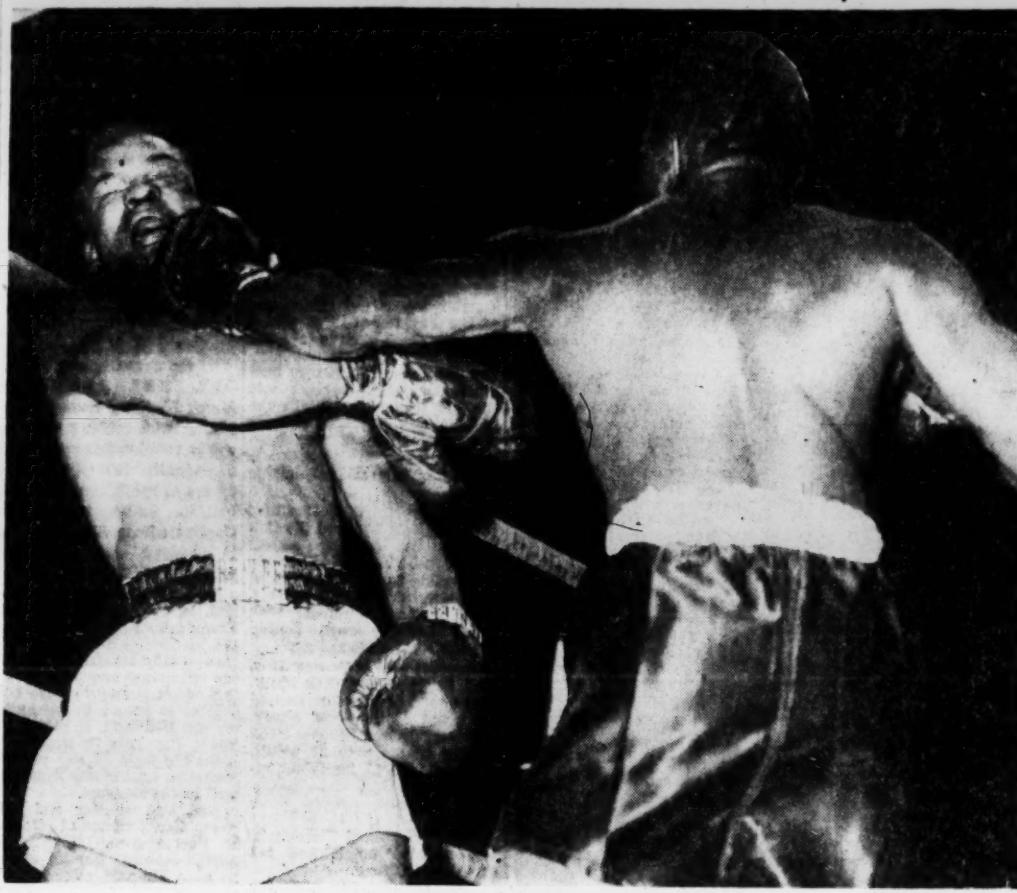

Akins took charge of the battle right at the start and it appeared that at last he was going to show St. Louis fans all of his stuff.

He went at top speed for three rounds, pounding Constance with lefts and rights, particularly when he got free against the ropes.

The game little visitor, however, came back strong in the fourth for a good round to gain the edge.

N.L. Still Looking Stronger Than A.L.

Inter-Loop Pace Set by Bucs, Cards

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 22 (AP)—There may, or may not, be something in Frank Lane's recent observation that "The National League is a stronger league than the American."

The senior circuit has captured the last two World Series—by the Dodgers last year and the Giants in 1954—and five of the last six All-Star games.

And the National League has the statistics going for them in the Grapefruit-Cactus competition this spring. In 53 interleague exhibition games, N.L. teams are out in front 28-24, with one tie.

Lane, who took over as the Cardinals' general manager this year after a similar tenure with the Chicago White Sox, said: "If the Cards were in the American League they'd finish ahead of the White Sox." Considering that St. Louis wound up in seventh place and the White Sox in third a year ago, that's quite a statement.

And Mr. Lane's Redbirds are carrying the N.L. banner in fine style in the exhibition games. They've beaten the Chicago Cubs 5-4, the Giants 4-4, Cincinnati 2-4, Philadelphia 1-3 and Milwaukee 1-3 with a tie.

The Boston Red Sox have put together the best American League mark in the interleague games. They've won four, lost one with one deadlock. The other records are: New York Yankees 4-2, the White Sox 3-2, Cleveland 5-4, Washington 2-3, Kansas City 2-4, Baltimore 3-6 and Detroit 1-6.

Trainer Jack Fadden of the Red Sox said today at Sarasota that Sluggers Ted Williams had aggravated a pulled muscle in his groin but should be able to play in exhibition games again "in a day or two."

The injury "is not serious but players of his age (37) do not snap back as they would have 15 years earlier," Fadden said. He described Williams as Anxious to play."

The National won both interleague games yesterday. The champion Dodgers beat the Detroit Tigers 3-2, on Randy Jackson's tenthinning single and Pittsburgh downed Washington 6-3 behind the effective pitching of Vernon Law and Vernon Kline.

In games involving National League Clubs, Cincinnati played four singles and 11 bases on balls into a 5-3 victory over the Phillies, and the Giants broke loose for 14 hits, including homers by Hank Thompson, Pitcher Johnny Antonelli and George Wilson, to nip the Cubs, 11-10.

American League exhibition games, Larry Doby connected for a 400-foot home as the White Sox blanked the Red Sox 6-0. Bobby Avila, playing his second game of the spring, drove in four runs with two triples and a single to lead Cleveland to an 11-4 victory over Baltimore. And Mickey Mantle continued his hot hitting with a homer and a triple as the Yankees tripped Kansas City, 9-5.

St. Louis Jim Pisoni whacked a two-run homer for the Orioles. It was his fourth this spring.

David vs. Goliath Tonight In Semifinals of N.I.T.

NEW YORK, March 22 (UPI)—It's David vs. Goliath in both ends of the National Invitation Tournament basketball semifinals tonight and both Goliaths—top-seeded Dayton and second-seeded Louisville—are solid favorites.

Dayton and its seven-foot center, Bill Uhl, looked tense and jittery in the quarterfinals, but the Flyers are expected to down scrappy little St. Francis of Brooklyn in one game tonight.

Louisville's tall towers, led by 6'8" Charley Tyra, are picked over third-seeded, aggressive St. Joseph's of Philadelphia in the other.

Dayton Coach Tom Blackburn admits that skyscraping Uhl has got to "snap out of it" if the Flyers are to whip St. Francis, the only unseeded team to reach the semi-finals. Uhl represents the chief height difference, but the big blond boy seems bewitched by a "Madison Square Garden complex," Blackburn said.

"If he has the same mental block he's had every time we've come here for the past three

Scott Wins in Air Force Tourney

Scott Air Force Base defeated Selfridge, 77-55, and Milwaukee Air Force Base downed Grandview, Mo., 80-57, in this morning's games of the Tenth Air Force basketball tournament at Scott. Dave Hunt led Scott with 26 points and Vic Joiner had 25 for Milwaukee.

Results yesterday included: 2468 (Bakalar, Ind.) 71; 2472 (Grand View) 59; Scott 65; Tenth Headquarters, (Chicago) 50; 2473 (Milwaukee) 56, 2471 (Chicago) 47; 2465 (Minneapolis) 58, 2242 (Selfridge) 45.

Blackburn added.

Louisville Coach Peck Hickman admits he's worried about St. Joseph's because "for a college team, I've never seen as much high school hustle as St. Joe's has, especially on defense."

Coach John Ramsey of St. Joseph's said he knows he has to do "something about that big man," but he added, "Louisville has great over-all balance in addition to that height. It doesn't depend on Tyra as much as I'd expected. Those backcourt men are great outside shooters."

WE
AMERICA TO THIS SIMPLE TEST

SOME TIME SOON — perhaps the next time you're at a tavern or restaurant — make this simple and revealing test with the same brand of gin you usually use at home. Taste a jiggerful over rocks — undiluted by vermouth, tonic water, or anything else. Then, try the same test with Seagram's Golden Gin. We guarantee that you will be astonished by the results.

The reason? Up to a certain point in its manufacture, Seagram's Gin is similar to other fine gins. But instead of bottling it at this point, Seagram takes the time to put its gin through an exclusive and original extra step of natural mellowing—a step not used in the manufacture of the usual type of gin.

And what a tremendous difference this method of mellowing makes in Seagram's Gin! First, its color changes naturally from white to the golden glint of candle-light. But more important, you'll notice an incomparable satin-smoothness and rare extra dryness that you just cannot find in any other gin.

Seagram's Golden Gin costs a little more, because it takes more time to make. But after your first taste, you'll agree that "time works wonders." Try it soon. You'll appreciate the difference it makes in your gin drinks.

LONG LOW LOOK

It's a brand-new breed of shoes by Thom McAn —and these pictures don't tell you the half of it!

SURE YOU CAN SEE that these new and different shoes are cut lower than the ones you have on right now.

Don't they look devil-may-care — and expensive? Wouldn't they make your feet look trimmer?

But wait! The most exciting news of all is something that no photograph can show you. That's the way these new light-stepping Thom McAns feel on you.

These streamlined low-cuts actually weigh up to half a pound less per pair than your regular shoes!

For every four steps you walk, they save you a pound of effort. In a week or a month, they can save you tons of energy!

Because we cut these new Thom McAns lower, they're also more flexible. That means practically no breaking in. What comfort! What freedom!

At Thom McAn, what kind of shoes have THE LONG LOW LOOK? Practically every style you can think of. That debonair Tassel Moccasin up there—or our new Italian Cross-Strap below. Our famous Jaguars—in a raft of fresh colors and leathers. Even our casual Sport Brogues.

Promise yourself something new and different in shoes this Easter. THE LONG LOW LOOK sign (above) is in every Thom McAn window, and so are the shoes with THE LONG LOW LOOK. Try on a pair today or tomorrow.

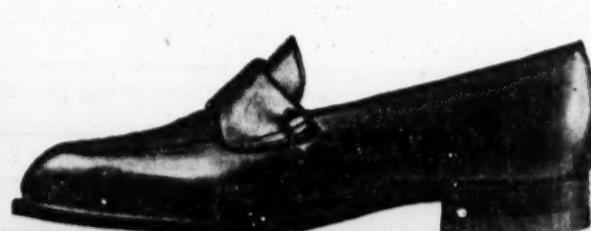

And remember that you can get your money back in seven days on any pair of Thom McAns if you don't agree that they look as good and feel as comfortable as shoes that cost twice as much.

No wonder Thom McAn is the best-selling shoe in all America! One pair will show you why.

the engineer or scientist who has more to offer...

Individual ability varies just as widely among engineers as among all people. To the engineer with unusual ability and promise, to the man who has more to offer—IBM has more to offer.

Consider these facts about IBM in terms of your own career objectives. First, digital computer development, design and manufacture is perhaps the one "unlimited" field in electronics today. Second, IBM is a leader and pioneer in this field—builder of the first automatic large-scale digital computer, builder of the world's largest computer. Third, IBM's engineering leadership is based on a solid succession of achievements; during 1955, IBM announced a major data processing improvement every two weeks. Fourth, and perhaps most significantly, there has been a five-fold growth in IBM lab personnel over the past five years. Finally, IBM's salaries are excellent, with advancement based solely on merit. Company-paid hospitalization, life insurance and retirement plans.

With all the evidence in, doesn't the IBM opportunity suggest more growth, more professional satisfaction, more stature...more room for your abilities?

'Another Lovellette,' Allen's Tag on Krebs; S.M.U. Set for Dons

By Robert Morrison
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

EVANSTON, Ill., March 22—Can Southern Methodist, with its St. Louis-bred aces, stop unbeaten San Francisco tonight in its headlong rush to another N.C.A.A. basketball title?

The answer is no, if you listen to the round ball experts who practically have given up any idea of picking against Bill Russell and the Dons.

The only team that can stop the Dons is the Philadelphia Warriors," said the ready-with-aquip Ken Loeffler when asked in New York recently whether he believed S.M.U. had a chance.

The old St. Louis Bomber coach, now coaching Texas A. & M. and well acquainted with the Southwestern Conference champions from S.M.U., said the Mustangs are a fine team with size and speed.

"But nobody is going to stop San Francisco," said Loeffler.

The odd-makers are agreed. San Francisco is an eight-point favorite over Jim Krebs, Bobby Mills and company for their tournament semifinal game tonight at Northwestern's McGraw Field House.

Hawkeyes Favored.

Big Ten Champion Iowa (19-5), which has a 16-game winning streak, is a nine-point choice over Temple (26-3) in the 7:30 p.m. opener of the semifinal program. There will be no national radio or television broadcast. Individual stations will be carrying the games, however.

The problem presented by San Francisco, which has won 53 games in a row and 55 of 56 in two seasons, is enough to strike fear into the stoutest of opposing hearts.

But the six-foot-eight Krebs, the Webster Groves lad who in his junior S.M.U. season has averaged 19.3 points per game, is not overwhelmed by the thought.

"We have nothing to lose," he said after the Mustangs won the regional crown at Lawrence, Kan., last week. "All we know about Russell is that he's supposed to be an All-American and gets about 25 rebounds a game."

Krebs himself has averaged 10 games without defeat and its only setback in 27 games thus far were an early 80-62 loss at Iowa and a 62-58 defeat at Kansas.

Bobby Mills from St. Louis, Cleveland, a junior like Krebs, is the second-best scorer of the Mustangs over the 27-game campaign with a 13.3 average. A six-footer, Mills pairs at guard with 6-1 Ron Morris of Shawnee, Okla. Regular forwards are Joe Krog (6-3) of Dallas.

St. Louis is represented by others on the S.M.U. squad.

Rick Herrscher of St. Louis

Cleveland is a 6-3 soph who has become the Mustangs' sixth player.

Herschel O'Kelly, sophomore from Webster Groves, and Carl Scharfberger, senior from St. Louis, Cleveland, are also squad members.

Allen, "is an above average group."

St. Louisan's Late Shot Wins For Moberly

HUTCHINSON, Kan., March 22 (AP)—Moberly, Mo., the defending champion, and Kilgore, Tex., advanced to the semifinals of the national junior college basketball tournament last night—Moberly by an eyelash.

A 30-foot jump shot by Joe Gummersbach of St. Louis in the final nine seconds won the game for Moberly over Boise, Idaho, 52-51. It was Gummersbach's only field goal attempt of the night.

Kilgore had an easier time with Graceland College of La-Moni, Ia., 85-63.

Two more quarterfinal games are scheduled tonight, between Pueblo, Colo., and the Cameron Aggies of Lawton, Okla., and between Hannibal-LaGrange of Hannibal, Mo., and New York City Tech.

Cameron beat Wright College of Chicago, 91-71 and Pueblo nicked Greenville College of Tigerville, S.C., 86-84, for their quarterfinal berths yesterday.

Champion Pascual

Winner on T.K.O.

BUENOS AIRES, March 22 (AP)—World Flyweight Champion Pascual Perez last night won on a technical knockout over Antonio Gomez, a fellow Argentinian who tossed in the towel in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round non-title bout.

Perez weighed 108 pounds, Gomez 112½.

Gomez took considerable punishment, but floored the champion briefly in the fourth round.

SOVIET JET IN BRITAIN

The first Soviet jet airliner to be seen west of the Iron Curtain stands on the runway at London airport today after non-stop 1500-mile flight from Moscow. Interest in the sleek aircraft almost overshadowed the arrival of its high-ranking passenger, Soviet secret police chief Ivan Serov, in England to check on security arrangements for the forthcoming visit of Soviet Premier Bulganin and Communist party secretary Khrushchev. The airliner, a civilian version of Russia's new 550-mile-an-hour Badger atom bomber, is powered by two jet engines which develop as much thrust as the four normally used in western jets of similar size.

An Interesting Time On Visit to Jamaica

By Leonard Hall

KINGSTON, Jamaica. SOME of our friends in Puerto Rico expressed to us a thought which went like this: "Here in this island we have not yet developed an intellectual life of sufficient strength to produce a real cultural pattern. There has been little definitive work done in the creative arts: music, literature, painting. But we hope these things still lie ahead and will take form as we raise the economic status of our people." Doubtless there would be many to take exception to this idea, although it seemed to us largely true. Yet with new industry pouring into the island, a gradual improvement in agricultural methods, and all the schools of higher learning crowded, there can be little doubt that cultural patterns will emerge, and with them a flowering of the arts. In Jamaica the situation is quite different and I think it can be said that there is a well-developed cultural pattern which is expressed in many different ways. Perhaps the flavor is primarily British, yet the tropical character of the island and the preponderance of its colored population are very strong factors in shaping the direction of the literary and graphic arts. Jamaicans write books, publish interesting and well-edited magazines and produce a large amount of good painting.

IN THE FIELD of natural history especially, but also in such areas as the graphic arts, the Institute of Jamaica plays an important part. Under the leadership of its director, C. Bernard Lewis, it sponsored our Audubon lecture. It publishes excellent studies of the fauna and flora of the island. Almost more interesting than the individuals we have met are our impressions of the island itself; of its native population; its old towns and back-country estates, the crops which grow there, the exotic flowering trees and plants which have run wild and grow everywhere on the island, the development of the tourist trade. On one night we went for luncheon to the famous old Myrtle Bank Hotel in the heart of Kingston and found it as delightful as when Ginnie visited it many years ago; and we browsed through the "free port" shops there, where smart women's clothes, fine English china and equally fine Jamaica rum may be secured at great bargains. Then we spent most of another afternoon at Hope Gardens and still on another day hired an ancient Packard with a driver and went across the Blue Mountains to Ocho Rios on the north shore. Here we lunched at Tower Isle, a resort hotel as luxurious as any Miami Beach can offer and also, I am afraid, a pretty good indication of what is bound to happen to this incredibly beautiful seacoast with its fine beaches and the bluest water in the world.

THIS DRIVE, incidentally, gave us a good idea of the agriculture of Jamaica and at least a taste of its topography. The island has high mountains with areas of rain forest still largely unexplored. It has innumerable small holdings where the natives earn a hard living with a few mango, banana and coconut trees. And there are huge estates where bananas are raised by the shipload, being cultivated along with coconuts. Sugar cane is another staple, still planted on hillsides that are far too steep for it. Citrus fruits include grapefruit, orange, tangerine, lime, lemon, tangerine, orange and others with names like uglifruit and shaddock. Other common fruits are the bright red ackee, the breadfruit which Capt. Bligh of the "Bounty" brought from Tahiti, sweetpot and soursop, guava, plantain, a huge pawpaw, starapple, and others which are also brought by Bligh. I'm not sure which of these, if any, are natives, since fruits and vegetables brought from all the tropics of the earth become "natives" as soon as they are introduced into this tropical paradise.

ON THE WAY to Ocho Rios we visited Casleton Gardens, a very old and beautiful botanical garden in the mountains which supplies Hope Gardens with many of its plants. Coming home we drove up Fern Gully, a canyon-like cut which was once an old riverbed. Here the overhanging rock often blotted out the sun and the ferns grew with a luxuriance we'd never seen before. Out on the timbered hillsides, the African tulip flamed scarlet, living up to its local appellation, "Flame of the Forest." And there were many others just as interesting: great cotton trees, the flamboyant, the immortelle or coral tree, Pride of Burma, "woman's tongue" lignum vitae and more others than I can possibly name. But this sort of flora is natural in a land where the temperature stays 78 degrees the year around and which has a good amount of rainfall.

Another place which made an impression was old Spanish Town, established in 1523 and the first capital of the island. Altogether, our time in Jamaica was over far too soon. It was with real regret that we had to see the end of our wonderful two weeks in the islands.

A New Grandparent

By Christopher Billopp

A NEW grandparent is one who has not had that experience before. A new grandparent, on getting the news and hearing that mother and baby are doing well is thrilled and exhilarated. The new grandparent feels that friends and acquaintances should be privileged to share the joy. To friends at a distance the joyful message is spread with the aid of telegrams and long-distance telephone calls. Local telephone calls carry the news to those near by.

Salesmen and delivery men arriving at the door are not allowed to depart without being let in on the glad tidings. Some excuse is found for bringing up the subject, as, for example, apologizing for not coming to the front door sooner because of being at the telephone announcing the arrival of a grandchild.

On setting out from home the phrase will be running through the head, "I am a grandparent." Perhaps the person standing on the corner waiting for the bus would like to hear the news. It could be brought up after remarking on the beauty of the day. The glad news will be spread in the market place. The butcher no doubt would like to hear about it. So would the manager. So would the young woman at the exit who tots the sales.

The arrival of the grandchild is a fit subject for the ride up in the elevator at the office. The news can be spread about at the coffee break and at lunchtime. It will be passed on to secretaries, office boys, office managers, assistant office managers, file clerks, char women and maintenance men. It will be given precedence in the agenda of the daily conference.

Thus, the day for the grandparent is one long thrill. That is until a cynical grandparent of long standing receives the news indifferently, adding, "Just wait until you have had five or six of them."

Stories From the Life of Jesus

The Sisters Mary and Martha

They Learned That Each Served Jesus in Own Way

"LORD, DON'T YOU EVEN CARE THAT MY SISTER HAS LEFT ME ALONE TO SERVE?" SAID MARTHA. "TELL HER TO HELP ME!"

By April Oursler Armstrong

CHAPTER NINETEEN.

THREE friends Jesus had, aside from His disciples, whom He loved very dearly. There was Martha, and her sister Mary, and their brother Lazarus, who lived in the town called Bethany.

For a long time the four had been good friends. At the very beginning of His public teachings, Jesus had met the gentle, shy Lazarus, and Lazarus had brought Him home for supper one night and introduced Him to his sisters.

Bethany was only a few miles from Jerusalem, and from then on, whenever He came near the town, Jesus made it His habit to stay with these friends and visit them. Often He had come to preach in the Bethany synagogue, where Lazarus and Martha and Mary worshipped. In fact, it was in that synagogue that Jesus had told the famous story of the Good Samaritan.

It would be hard to find three people more different than these. Lazarus was a hard-working man, but a quite one, the kind who listens but seldom speaks, who does his good deeds in secret, and never complains of what others do to him.

He liked to garden in his spare time, and to make flowers bloom, and he knew how best to prune trees and train vines. He liked the feel and the smell of growing things.

Mary was a thoughtful and dreaming girl, with a mind that was hungry to learn. People in Bethany used to scold Mary and worry about her because she was not forever worrying about her hair and her skin, or primping like other young ladies.

She was neat and clean, they admitted, and pretty in her own way, but why was she forever worrying her head about things that didn't concern her? Better that she would learn to sew a fine seam, or to bake a rich cake, and busy herself at home, instead of mooning over thoughts that were too big for her! And Mary, when she heard them speak, only bent her head and smiled.

Now Martha was just the opposite. She scrubbed and swept and dusted and washed and ironed and baked and roasted and basted and tasted and spent her days and most of her nights performing all the duties a woman was expected to perform.

Three people, so different, yet Jesus loved them all, equally, which is of course one of the happiest secrets about the Lord.

ON DAY Jesus came to stop at their home. In the cool shadows of the afternoon he sat in the doorway, talking with Mary, the thinker and dreamer, who sat listening. And they were talking not of things of this world, but of heaven, and of the ways of the kingdom of God.

Mary, her black eyes eager on the Master's face, asked many questions. She ached to learn every bit she could about the Way and the Truth of Christian life.

But while they talked, from inside the house came a growing clatter of plates and pots and jugs. It was, somehow, a very noisy kitchen this day—almost as if Martha were deliberately making a racket.

Still Jesus and Mary sat talking. Suddenly Martha, red-faced, hands dripping wet, breath panting, stomped angrily to the doorway. With that terrible politeness that some people use when they are very cross indeed, she spoke to Mary.

"My!" said Martha. "Isn't it nice and cool out here in the yard. I can feel the coolness now that I'm out of the hot kitchen. You know, Mary, we have a great and wonderful Guest tonight, and we must get supper ready. Here you sit, doing nothing, while I bake and stew over a hot fire! Don't think I wouldn't enjoy sitting out here to chat, but after all—someone must make the meal!"

Mary hung her head, and bit her lip. But before she could reply, Martha turned to Jesus.

"Lord, don't you even care that my sister has left me alone to serve? Speak to her, and tell her to help me!"

Mary hopped to her feet, and a blush crept over her cheeks.

But Jesus held out His hand to stop her from going in.

"Martha, Martha," He said gently. "You are careful, and troubled about many things. But one thing is necessary. Mary has chosen the best part, which shall not be taken away from her."

Martha opened her mouth wide, and shut it again with a pop.

Never in her born days had she expected such an answer from the Master!

With a switch of her apron, and a toss of her head, she hurried back to the kitchen, as puzzled and unhappy a woman as ever lived.

"What on earth do you suppose He meant?" she said to herself as she pounded the salt into the stew meat.

"He always said He approved of hard work. Am I to blame for doing my job, for goodness' sake? That Mary is just being plain shiftless, sitting out there talking. You'd think she was a man, not a woman with a woman's work to do!"

Then Martha laughed out loud. "But there will always be plenty like me!" she said. "The world needs us both!"

Then with a flurry and a scurry, Martha bustled back to work, bending over her pots and pans.

When the table was set, and the family gathered, Jesus gave thanks for the food they were about to eat. Tasting, He praised Martha's savory stew, and His eyes saw each detail of her work—her crisp linens, her shining dishes. And a blessing was in each look He gave her.

Across the table Mary met Martha's eyes. And the sisters smiled, for both knew they served Jesus, each in her own way.

A Short Course on Sauces

By Hoyt Alden

MOST amateur chefs, when it comes to the question of sauces, will react in one of two ways. Either they will become overawed by the idea of making a sauce and get stage fright, or else they will want to start right at the top, turning out fancy and complicated French sauces that require the skill of chefs with years of experience.

There are several ways to learn about sauces, one of them being that a good sauce is not necessarily a difficult sauce, and another being that while a good sauce will enhance the flavor of a good dish, and even atone, to some extent, for some absence of flavor, it can never cover up bad cooking.

So while we hate to disillusion Birdie the Bride, there's no covering up a lousy meat loaf with a lot of tomato sauce, and drowning a dish in cream sauce isn't going to fool anybody if the dish is no good, and it isn't going to make anybody very happy unless they happen to just love cream sauce.

HERE are several good sauces which adapt themselves to a lot of dishes: They are usually basic sauces which, with the addition of one or more ingredients, can be altered to suit different foods. Here is a good example:

Take a slice of ham, remove the fat and dice it. The ham not the fat.

Slice two onions and two carrots and fry them with the ham in butter until the onions are brown. Stir in three tablespoons of flour and let the flour brown as you stir.

Now add a quart of stock, a little at a time, a bay leaf and a sprig of thyme. Stir and let simmer for an hour, and then add a chopped tomato, half a cup of red wine and salt and pepper to taste.

Cook it another 10 minutes, then add half a cup of chopped mushrooms and cook another 25 minutes.

You now have a good basic sauce. It will keep for a long time, covered, in the ice box.

When you need a specific sauce, use it as a base for the following variations:

For duck, pheasant or lamb, stir in a tablespoon of currant jelly over a low flame. Let it cool. Now stir in two tablespoons of port wine, two tablespoons of lemon juice, one teaspoon of dry mustard, a pinch of ground ginger and a teaspoon of paprika.

Now put three tablespoons of grated orange rind in a pan with water to cover and bring it to a boil. Add the rind to the mixture. Cook it all for a few minutes, remove it from the fire and let it stand and cool to room temperature.

For corned beef or tongue, add a few tablespoons of tarragon vinegar, a few capers and a few chopped pickles, all to taste.

For roast beef, saute some sliced mushrooms in butter and add them to the sauce, along with port wine to taste.

For veal, add mushrooms again and a touch of sherry to taste.

For boiled beef, add chopped green olives, fresh grated horseradish to taste and a little chopped parsley.

Cocktail Party

By Stan Delaplane

SAN FRANCISCO.

WELL, nothing will do but we must throw a cocktail party. For it seems in our social scheme, everybody must do this once a year. Or be from nowhere. The terrible thing about it is that I apparently agreed to this preposterous affair weeks ago. You agree and nobody reminds you of it. Until one evening you come home and find the place full of caterers.

"Are you sure you are catering the right place?" I said politely. The caterer consulted his notebook.

"Absolutely," he said. "Cocktails 5 to 7."

"Then it must be wrong," I said. "For it is now 5:15."

"Nobody comes to cocktails at 5. It is simply a way of saying it on the invitation," he said.

"What invitation?"

"The invitation which we sent out for you. Part of the service. We have taken your list of 75 persons and—"

"Seventy-five what?"

"WOULD YOU LIKE an aperitif while we wait, sir? You look pale."

"Give me a rye old-fashioned," I said, sitting down. "How did this happen?"

"Sorry, sir. There is no rye. It is not chic. As to how it happened, I imagine you were approached several weeks ago with an off-hand remark, 'Let's have a cocktail party.' You, being engrossed in the sporting page, simply said: 'What? Oh, sure.' You then forgot it. That is the way it usually happens, sir."

"I don't recall anything of the sort."

"THEY SELDOM DO. Immediately thereafter we received a call from your home engaging our services. We took the list of guests and divided it into quarts and finger sandwiches, making the necessary purchases."

"It happened like that?"

"From my experience I would lay odds on it. You are not the first," said the caterer, "to have been staggered by the unexpected blow. And now, sir," he said, "I would advise you to dress. For the worst is yet to come."

"ONLY THE OTHER DAY I was reading an ad by a maker of whisky: 'The cocktail party is a highly useful social institution in this day and age. It makes for informal entertaining and is relatively easy to arrange.'

"It depends what you mean by 'relatively,'" said the caterer with a smile. "A cocktail party generally is no more arranged than the atom bomb is arranged. There are rigid ground rules to avoid explosion."

"For instance?"

"The arrival of guests, for instance. Though the invitations read 5 to 7, nobody would think of getting around after 6. A few will leave at 7, but the majority will bend their elbows until about 8:30. There will then be the problem of the people in the corner."

"What corner?"

"Any corner. All corners probably. There will be the discussion of the long count in the Dempsey-Tunney fight. Another pair will discuss the political situation. You cannot pry them loose with a tire iron."

"I READ in the advertisement," I said, "that you simply come in and announce 'It looks like we are all out of Chivas Regal.' The guests then depart in great disappointment. Or so the manufacturer says."

"Do not count on it," said the caterer.

And sure enough, when I made the announcement, the guests were not disappointed at all. They simply moved in on the cooking sherry.

Adolescent Phase

By Angelo Patri

FATHERS and mothers of children entering adolescence are often troubled by changes in the attitudes and behavior of the young people.

"Lately our son has shut us out of his life. He no longer tells us anything about his day in school, or about anything at all. He answers briefly when spoken to, but for the rest of the time he busies himself with his books or his work. What is the matter?"

Nature is continuing her work of growing a child toward his maturity. He is taking his first steps toward manhood and his body is undergoing great changes that make him uncomfortable without his being able to define the trouble he feels.

HE WANTS MORE PERSONAL FREEDOM in thought and action. He wants more of a share in making decisions that affect him personally. In short, he is in process of becoming an individual with an individual's need for self-expression. He is on the way to that goal and at times it is a most uncomfortable way. Be patient with him. It will pass.

It is this time most parents become aware of the day that is coming when the child they have nurtured must leave them and start out on a life of his own—a day all parents must face. Meantime, as they prepare their child against that day, they have to go along with him as he struggles through stage by stage.

If he seems to want to be silent, allow him to be so without any pressure to get him to talk. Silence is healing sometimes. Try it. If he withdraws from the family group in the evening, take it as a matter of course. Fussing about it will only annoy him and leave things worse than they were. In short, accept him as he is for the time being. Allow for some letdown in school marks. See that he is offered nourishing food in plenty, and that he has the opportunity for rest that he needs.

SHOULD HIS CONDITION become acute so that he seems to be overcome by it, so that he cannot function in school or at home or among his companions, call for the help of the experts. The family doctor may be able to help him. If not, try the physicians associated with the hospital.

Usually this condition, being normal, passes without too much disturbance. The family keep calm and calm the younger when he needs it. Some discipline there must be for him, lest he lose control of himself completely. He can be held to responsible behavior so that the members of the family are not imposed upon. Reasonable consideration for him need not become sheer selfishness. In time he straightens out, to the relief of all concerned.

My Day

Snowstorm Introduces A Slow Pace

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK.

ON Sunday afternoon I went out to speak in the evening in Englewood, N.J. A car came for me and we simply crawled the entire way. I arrived on time to find that, in spite of the snowstorm, a full attendance was present for the dinner. The only thing that worried me was how, in returning, I could climb the hills I had come down. Another route was suggested to my driver and he took it successfully, bringing us back safely at about 11:30 p.m.

With my usual passion for fresh air at night—which, I am told, is quite out of fashion now—I could not resist opening a window before retiring, and at 6 a.m. I awoke to find that the snowstorm was in my bedroom.

I GOT UP and found a dustpan and pail, filling the pail with snow over and over again until my poor maid woke up and put the finishing touches on my efforts to remove the outdoors from my bedroom. Everything within reach of the snow was soaked, and from then on I kept my window closed.

I was supposed to go to Philadelphia on Monday, for both lunch and dinner speeches. So I decided that if I could do nothing else, I could walk to Fifty-ninth street, get a subway and then shuttle across to Pennsylvania Station.

But the Pennsylvania Railroad would give me no assurance that the trains would be on time going over or coming back. At the same time, it occurred to me that in this weather there would be no audience in Philadelphia, so I called those in charge there and they promptly agreed, asking me to give them a "snow" check for later.

I HAD a free day. Such a wonderful thing.

First, I took my little Scotty, who loves the snow, for a walk. Then I did all the dictating that has been accumulating for months, some reading, wrote letters, talked on the telephone with my snowbound son, Franklin Jr., on his farm. I also talked with my son, Johnny, who had managed to get out of Hyde Park and catch a train down, but the rest of his family was snowbound in Hyde Park.

I called my office and asked if they really needed me and, if so, I could have walked there, if necessary. But I was allowed to stay home.

Then I was told that a grandson was marooned, unable to fly or catch a train to join his family in Florida, and I was asked if he could stay with me. Of course, I was delighted to have him.

All of this was pleasant, but I wish the snow were gone.

The superintendent of our building has just told me there is no oil for the furnace and we will have no heat except from our two fireplaces. I mildly protest that the oil should be allowed to get so low, but we are fortunate to have fireplaces and wood.

OPINION

Dear Martha:
My husband has been seeing another woman. She works at the plant where he does and I know he takes her home after work every day. The reason I know about it is that she had the nerve to call up here and tell me about going with him. Martha, what can you do about a woman like that, who will do all she can to break up a marriage? I asked my husband about her and at first he got real mad, then he admitted he had gone with her, but he said he loved only me and begged me to forgive him. He promised he wouldn't go with her any more, but since they work at the same place I know they see each other. Do you think I should call her up and tell her to stay away from my husband?

UNHAPPY.

No, but I think you should tell your husband that you don't intend to stand for his running around with some other woman. Don't put all the blame on her. Granted, she's wrong. But so is he. When something like this happens, it's never the fault of just one person. He knew he was being disloyal to you and so did she. But this is something to be settled between you and your husband, so don't drag her into it. When she telephones, refuse to discuss the matter. You don't have to waste your time with someone who has no more decency than she has shown.

Dear Martha:
I AM A GIRL 27 YEARS OLD. Three years ago I started going with a boy and we were planning to get married. But then one day I saw him with another girl and naturally I was hurt and mad. When he telephoned the next day I refused to talk to him. He wrote me a letter saying he wanted to come over and explain, but I wrote back there was nothing to explain and I haven't heard from him since. But now, Martha, I miss him so much I could die. I guess I was wrong but I was so hurt that I didn't want to talk about it. All this happened four months ago. Do you think I should write or call him and give him the chance to explain? What do you think I should do?

PEG.

Maybe he's out of the notion by this time. I think you made your big mistake, Peg, in refusing to listen when he tried to tell you what had happened. Maybe you jumped to conclusions. Maybe this was a business associate or at least a casual acquaintance who didn't mean nearly as much to him as you did. Frankly, I think you owe him an apology for your high-handed way, even though you were hurt. You might write him a note and tell him that you are sorry and hope for the best.

Write today for Martha Carr's free leaflet of prayers for children and grace to be said at table. Be sure to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Make Room for Papa

By Ruth Millett

MAKE room for Papa. That, it seems to me, is the crying need in the homes being put on the market today.

They have wonderful kitchens for Mama, with built-in ovens of stainless steel, dishwashers and garbage disposals, utility rooms for the electric dishwasher and dryer and home freezer.

They have playrooms for the teen-agers of the family. They have large living rooms for entertaining.

They have all sorts of gadgets that women love.

But there's no place for Papa. You can look at 50 of the new houses and never find a hideaway for him.

No workbench where he can put his tools and putter. No place for him to have a hobby. No adequate storage space for his guns, fishing tackle, camera equipment, etc.

All Papa has is half of the master bedroom. He doesn't even have an attic or a basement to call his own.

And yet Papa has got to pay for the house that has a place for everybody but Papa.

And not only that, he will probably have to listen to Mama complain because he isn't a handy man. (And he hasn't a workshop in which to hammer and saw.)

He will undoubtedly be pushed further and further out of the closets as Mama urges him to get rid of his "junk" because it is cluttering up her dream house.

Poor Papa. In today's bright and shiny new dream houses he is the forgotten member of the family.

All Papa can call his own is the mortgage.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

THE following letter comes from a recent bride: "Will you please tell me if it is proper for a bride to invite her family and friends to her new house, or should they go by themselves to call on her. I was recently married and when none of my friends came to visit me I wondered why and was told that they were waiting for me to invite them. Shouldn't they come on their own accord, calling me first, of course, to see if I will be at home?"

It would have been correct for them to call on you without waiting for your invitation. But since a surprising number of persons do not know this, you yourself should in kindness invite them first.

DEAR MRS. POST: Someone told me it wasn't in good taste to send out birth announcements for a second or third baby. In other words, announcements could be sent for the first addition to the family but not for any others. If this is true, how else do you let friends and acquaintances know the news?

Answer: It is entirely proper to send announcements for each baby (no matter how many one has) to friends who would be interested. Such announcements do not obligate anyone to send a present.

'Space Is an Expensive Commodity'

By Elizabeth Hillyer

INCREASING THE SEATING SPACE WILL MAKE THE ROOM APPEAR LARGER.

THE living room is the same—22 feet by 12 feet, 6 inches—for both furniture arrangements shown on the floor plans. But one greatly increases the seating space of the room, and looks airier and larger. It's all done with sectional units, wisely placed, in the room design at right, by Norman Fox MacGregor.

The arrangement at left is tasteful and attractive, but a look at the other arrangement proves how much more can be done. The first arrangement doesn't seat enough people. There's no true conversation group. And there's more than a hint of crowding and clutter.

MACGREGOR's arrangement provides a continuous curved sectional seating unit, 11 by 8 feet. It fits into the room smoothly to make the striking point that a big piece of furniture often makes a room look larger than a small piece does. Tables behind the units provide space for lamps and accessories which are usually placed short, interrupt the effect with clutter.

To quote MacGregor, "Space, these days, is an expensive commodity, with the building costs of new homes figured per square foot. To keep spaces within reason, rooms are smaller, but the family needs deserve the space in them to live in. You can make a small living room seem larger and actually provide more room for living through careful planning and the thoughtful buying of furniture."

SECTIONALS always provide more seating space, used as they are against either one or two walls and freeing so much center floor space. They also create the illusion of space with their long, low sleek lines which emphasize the length of the space in which they are placed. They draw the eye smoothly along their horizontal expanse, while small scattered groups stop it short, interrupt the effect with clutter.

To quote MacGregor, "Space, these days, is an expensive commodity, with the building costs of new homes figured per square foot. To keep spaces within reason, rooms are smaller, but the family needs deserve the space in them to live in. You can make a small living room seem larger and actually provide more room for living through careful planning and the thoughtful buying of furniture."

Underneath those layers of dingy varnish you may have something there—a beautiful piece of furniture that needs only to show its fine wood grain. Learn how to work refinishing wonders with the help of Elizabeth Hillyer's new booklet, "FURNITURE REFINISHING—HOW TO DO IT YOURSELF."

It's yours for 15¢ in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to Miss Hillyer at the Post-Dispatch.

At MID-AFTERNOON eat an orange or apple or take another glass of the same sort of milk.

You can have these and then eat a well balanced and rounded meal in the evening.

The low caloric bread is a help while reducing. The small items are the things to watch, such as cookies and nuts and salad dressings and butter. Use just a small amount of butter on your egg and almost none on your sandwich—OR, you can buy or make one of the very low-calored dressings.

Do not be afraid of a sandwich at lunch but do leave off the high caloric trimmings. Your mustard and thin pickle slices will give it flavor.

"Anyway, his departure into matrimony had made a hole in my life. It was a blow, but actually it was my pride that was hurt, nothing but my pride."

Speaking of her other love experience in 1948, this time in June, Margaret writes:

"I was feeling very sorry for myself. One of my best beaux had married another girl. There had been times when I had thought he might be the one."

Margaret Truman's Story

Her Two 1948 Romances

NEW YORK (INS).

MARGARET TRUMAN, whose engagement to newspaper man Clifton Daniel Jr., was announced last week, reveals that she rejected at least one previous offer of marriage while her father was President in 1948.

The second installment of Margaret's own life story "Souvenir," in the April issue of Good Housekeeping magazine, also discloses she was jilted by another man three months later.

The story continues the intensely personal recollections of a shy young woman who forced herself to success in a TV career because she wanted to be an individual in her own right.

Margaret does not identify the two suitors who complicated her already complicated life in the White House.

Of the first, she writes with typical candor and warmth:

"In March of 1948 I received a proposal of marriage. Spring was in the air, and we were driving home from a pleasant dinner in Chevy Chase when my companion popped the question.

"I had a premonition that he was going to ask me, and I didn't want him to, because much as I liked him, he wasn't the one. I had some kind of romantic idea about the one, who would come along and sweep me off my feet—'Some Enchanted Evening,' as they say in the song."

About Nails
As far as a lot of people are concerned, there are two kinds of nails—little ones and big ones. The big ones are so big that they usually split the wood and the little nails are so small that they don't hold.

Well, now you can get nails in almost any size from brads that are only a fraction of an inch long to spikes that run a good many inches, but today we aren't as interested in the sizes of nails as we are in the various types and when and where they should be used.

The most popular type of nail is the common nail with the large head. This is good for all sorts of rough work about the house. When you use them for outside work, select the galvanized type or better yet, the aluminum ones that don't rust.

For any sort of finish wood-work about the house where you don't want the nail head to show, use a casing or finishing nail. The casing nail has a much smaller head than the common nail, and the head can easily be set below the wood surface with a nail set. The hole over the head is then filled with putty or plastic wood. Finishing nails have even a smaller head than casing nails.

If you want to nail up some hardboard, then you use a hardboard nail which has a nice sharp point that makes it easy to start in this rather tough type of building board. For fastening gypsum wallboard, you use a grooved gypsum wallboard nail which has good solid holding power. Roll roofing and asphalt shingles require a large head galvanized or aluminum roofing nail. If you want to nail wood or asbestos shingles to fiberboard sheathing you use a self-clinching nail and if you want to nail something to masonry you can often do it with a cut steel nail.

Try and Stop Me
By Bennett Cerf

YOU'LL NEVER find these definitions in Webster, but the late H. L. Mencken insists the correct delineation of a bachelor of 35 or over is "an average male whom no average female ever has made a serious effort to marry."

W. Cox defines Christmas Jewelry as "the first thing that turns green in spring."

A. Krichbaum insists that a perfectionist is "one who takes infinite pains and usually gives them to everyone around him."

Mrs. H. Manges, speaking with what sounds like the voice of experience, adds that a tree is "an object that stands in one place for a century, then leaps out in front of a husband who is driving."

TONY CRIMMINS, long-time foreman of the Bar-Z ranch in New Mexico, warns, "Don't underestimate the power of the radio. Since we installed one, we learn a new cowboy song every night, and what's more, we've found out that the dialect we've been using all our lives is completely wrong."

Creamed Eggs
Ingredients: One-fourth cup butter or margarine, one-fourth cup flour, two and one-fourth cups milk, salt, pepper, celery salt, eight hard-cooked eggs, buttered toast.

Method: Make a white sauce of the butter, flour and milk; add salt, pepper and celery salt to taste. Slice eggs and arrange on buttered toast; pour sauce over. Makes four to six servings.

Baked Roast Beef Hash
Ingredients: One package (12 ounces) frozen mashed potatoes, 2 cups finely chopped roast beef (use knife for chopping), one-fourth finely diced onion, salt, pepper, butter or margarine, paprika.

Method: Heat potatoes in double boiler according to package directions; mix with chopped onion, salt, pepper, butter or margarine, paprika. Heat in a moderate (375 degrees) oven until bubbling hot and top is browned—20 to 30 minutes. Serve at once with chili sauce. Makes four servings.

Imperial. THE FIRST MARGARINE UNCONDITIONALLY GUARANTEED TO TASTE LIKE THE HIGH-PRICED SPREAD!

You're going to be seeing a brand new and exciting product at your grocer's today . . . a product so superior that it carries a guarantee never before made in all of margarine history. But then, there's never been a margarine like it. Imperial is the first margarine unconditionally guaranteed to bring you the tantalizing flavor formerly found only in the expensive spread for bread.

IMPERIAL'S GOT THAT FLAVOR

Flavor is what's been missing in margarine. And that flavor is what Lever Brothers devoted seven years to achieve . . . seven years of testing formula after formula to bring you the incomparable flavor of the expensive spread for bread. It wasn't hard to make Imperial spread easier than any other margarine. And it wasn't hard to make Imperial as nutritious as even the most expensive spread you can buy.

The trick was flavor. And Imperial is the first margarine to capture and hold that unmistakable flavor everybody loves.

YOU AGREE—OR WE'LL RETURN YOUR MONEY!

We know you may find it hard to believe that a margarine could live up to all we claim for Imperial. So, we want you to give Imperial the toughest tests you know. Spread Imperial on bread or toast . . . use it for seasoning vegetables . . . plop a generous chunk of Imperial in your frying pan and set it sizzling with eggs for your fussy husband. Any way, and every way, Lever Brothers unconditionally guarantees Imperial will taste like the high-priced spread to you, or they'll return every penny you spent to try it! P.S. Like the high-priced spread, Imperial is delicate and perishable. So to protect its perfect flavor, always keep Imperial in your refrigerator!

Keep in refrigerator to protect perfect flavor
